INTRODUCTORY.

This is the first edition of the R. L. Polk & Co.'s Portsmouth City Directory and it is issued with the assurance that all the varied information desirable in a modern, first-class directory to a growing and bustling city is given with special accuracy, and will, we believe, prove an almost infallible guide to those who use it. Portsmouth, situated at the junction of the Ohio and Scioto rivers, in 83° W. Longitude and between $38^{\circ} 30'$ and 39° N. Latitude, has now attained that point in her history where a reliable City Directory is an important necessity to a clientage that embraces the life and activity of the city and it is the intention of the publishers to fully occupy this field of enterprise and give its patrons an exemplification of all modern ideas in directory making.

WHAT THE DIRECTORY CONTAINS.

This Directory contains a list of the citizens of Portsmouth alphabetically arranged, telling their business, location of business and of residence or boarding house. It gives the style of the firms and of the individual partners. It contains a complete Classified Commercial Directory of all business, manufacturing and professional pursuits and likewise a list of all city, county and state officers. Nothing has been omitted concerning the city government and city institutions, the information concerning which is full and reliable. It contains the executive, educational, engineer, police, fire and health departments of the city, a complete directory of all the courts, of all benevolent and secret societies and orders, banks, churches, clubs, libraries, newspapers, asylums and hospitals, colleges and schools, parks, etc. The directory also gives a list of the streets and avenues of the city as corrected by the City Engineer. The Portsmouth Directory is placed in the libraries of the various directory offices throughout the country, where it serves the general public as a valuable book of reference and the city it represents as a splendid standing advertisement.

THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH has more than doubled its population since the Census of 1890. Within the corporate limits, the population is not less than 25,000, while the immediate suburbs number about 5,000 more. Portsmouth is one of the most prosperous of the smaller cities in the State. It is no exaggeration to say that its progress has been phenomenal and the wonderful commercial and industrial growth in the past few years, without which there could have been no such upward movement in population, warrants the most sanguine expectations for its future..

Among the many reasons for this are the civic pride and progressive spirit of the citizens, the natural advantages of location, the exceptional facilities for transportation afforded by the Ohio river, which carries more tonnage than any other in the world, and the three gigantic railway systems of the Baltimore & Ohio, the Chesapeake & Ohio and the Norfolk & Western. These facilities for shipping are seldom equalled.

The beautiful valleys of the Ohio and Scioto are wonderfully fertile. The hills abound in the best quality of building stone and in the very finest clays and shale for the manufacture of fire, building and paving brick.

One of Portsmouth's most important industries is the manufacture of shoes. The excellence of the Portsmouth product has spread its fame around the world. Her five factories send out about six million pairs a year, or a shoe for every second of the working hours. In this industry thousands are employed. A dozen immense brick plants turning out fire, paving and building brick employ their thousands. The stove foundries, rolling mills, and other iron interests call for an army of skilled artisans. The Norfolk & Western Railway has located here one of the largest terminal plants in the country. The average pay roll at these shops is over $100,000 per month. It would be impossible here to give an adequate and detailed idea of Portsmouth's vast industrial interests. Their diversity insure constant activity. Among her products are cement, cereal goods, cigars, clothing, harness, drugs, gas engines, automobiles, telephones, electric supplies, knit goods, ice, laces, medicines, mufflers, monuments, machinery, novelties, ranges, spokes, rims, veneers, lumber, carriages, wagons, etc., comprising altogether over a hundred distinct lines of manufacture. This diversity of production has created especially excellent opportunities for remunerative employment to the mechanic and laboring man and there are few cities anywhere in which the working people have enjoyed better prosperity. This is attested by the large number of comfortable and attractive homes in the city and its neighborhood that are owned by wage earners. The crowded tenement districts which are such an eyesore in many other industrial centers are absent from Portsmouth, which has no section that could be denominated as a slum district. The city's jobbing and wholesale trade must not be overlooked. Commercially it is the unquestionable metropolis of a vast area, and has in all of the staple branches of wholesale trade, houses which rank with the best in the State and are prepared to meet the demands of retailers in the most satisfactory manner in all kinds of merchandise. The jobbing and wholesale interest has been developed by a particularly representative class of merchants and their enterprise and progressive business methods, coupled with the quality of the products they handle and the prices at which they sell, has given them a position which places them at an advantage over their competitors in other cities. In general jobbing lines Portsmouth has some of the largest and most substantial houses between Cincinnati and Pittsburg and this is particularly true of the trade in groceries, dry goods, notions, hardware, shoes, furniture, candies, drugs, hats and millinery.

Natural gas is furnished in abundance and is a luxury that the poor as well as the rich may enjoy for it is the cheapest of fuels. It is supplied to all parts of the city and is unsurpassed for heating, lighting, domestic cooking, commercial and industrial purposes. In matters of public conveniences the city is the peer of any of its size. The organization of the municipal government has been effected on broad and enduring lines and covers all of the necessary departments for the protection of life, and property, the supplying of public needs in the way of streets and thoroughfares, the prevention and extinguishing of fires, the administration of public justice, and all the features for which city government is organized and operated. Portsmouth's public school system is representative of the best methods, the most complete facilities and the most useful and modern ideas, applied alike to the physical requirements and the mental and moral development of the pupils. From the kindergarten, through the grades and up to the senior year of the high school, the course of study has been thought out with care and placed in operation under the most skillful auspices and under the management of the ablest educators procurable.

In addition to the public school system the city is well provided with the means for private education furnished by a number of well organized institutions. There are few cities in the country which have the religious needs of their population more effectively met in way of church organization and structures than Portsmouth. From the early days of the city the sound of the church bell has been a familiar one to her people and throughout all the history of the city the opportunities for worship have been fully commensurate with the requirement.

Handsome opera houses and lecture halls bring the best attractions to the city and in libraries, hospitals, clubs, fraternities, etc., no city of its size can surpass it. This city is known as one of the best in the land for the quality of entertainment and accommodation it affords to the visitor who registers at its hotels. Of course, the hotels are not all in the same class. They vary in accommodation, as well as in prices and thus meet the varied requirements of all classes of guests. The finest of them furnish a class of attractions, fare and service to satisfy the most exacting. The others, grading down to some very inexpensive houses, each in its class adds to the general repute of the city as one not surpassed by any of its size anywhere in the manner it caters to the needs of permanent guests or of strangers within its gates.

Come and see this city. Drive over its twenty miles of paved streets; visit its elegant homes and inspect its commercial and industrial institutions.

When you have done this for yourself, and not before, you will be able to more nearly appreciate the merits of Portsmouth.

And now, in conclusion, we wish to acknowledge the kindness of the merchants, manufacturers and business men of Portsmouth, shown in their liberal patronage and in the valued assistance so cheerfully given to our canvassers.

Respectfully,
THE PUBLISHERS.
