Historical Sketch

THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH, OHIO, IS PLEASANTLY situated at the foot of the Scioto Valley, on the Ohio River, in a picturesque environment, one hundred miles from Cincinnati, one hundred from the State Capital, and having Charleston, the capital of West Virginia, for a next-door neighbor to the east. The population, now twenty-five thousand, is steadily increasing at the rate of two thousand per annum.

It is the terminus of three divisions of the Norfolk and Western Railroad, of one division of the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern, and is also served by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway on the south shore of the river. A daily line of fast and well appointed steamboats afford direct, cheap and luxurious service to Cincinnati, Pittsburg and the upper Kanawha.

This city occupies a site that has been a favored seat of population from time prehistoric. The earthworks of the Moundbuilders covered these terraces for some miles above the ancient mouth of the Scioto. Their vast extent and massive character presupposes the patient labor of a numerous populace through a long period of occupancy. These interesting works centered in a cluster of stately mounds and embankments at the grounds of the Children's Home, overlooking the present city. It is the opinion of the writer that within a short period that this site will again become the center of population, and that a new Scioto County Court House will come to occupy this imposing site of the citadel of an ancient and forgotten people.

The Moundbuilders antedated and disappeared before the American Indian. At a later period a Shawanese capital occupied the same situation. The ashes of their council fires had not disappeared from the slopes of these embankments when the white man came to turn the virgin soil, and to curiously pick up the arrow-heads with which the ground was strewn.

Colbert, the "great minister" of the "Grand Monarque," dreaming of empire more vast than the broadest confines of Rome, caused to be planted at the confluence of all the principal rivers a plate of graven brass, and stretched out a line of military posts along all the portages from Montreal to New Orleans. One of these plates was planted at the old mouth of the Scioto. This plate has not been found. He also established a trading and military post at and within "The Old Fort," which, with its four massive walls and four sally ports, a perfect square true to the points of the compass, he found ready-made to his hand, still standing guard opposite the mouth of the Scioto,—a silent monument of a dead empire.

After the provinces were ceded to Great Britain (1763), the French withdrew to the Southwest,—to Louisiana,—and their Indian allies to the Northwest, where the uneasy white man had not yet come to rob him of his patrimony.

The colonies now got into trouble with the mother country, and for almost ten years were too busy and too fearful to cross the Alleghenies, and the lovely valley of the Ohio was for a short period tenantless.

The first permanent settlers that came into the Ohio valley were discharged soldiers of the Revolutionary War,—ragged veterans, penniless patriots,—dowered by a penniless Republic with acres as fertile in its virginity and as fruitful as the Garden of Eden and as numerous as the stars in the Milky Way. Impoverished and fearless, they came into the Land of Promise that had been spied out by Daniel Boone and Simon Kenton to conquer a wilderness, found their own fortunes and add new stars to the constellation.

They were followed by the frightened subjects of "the first emigration," fleeing from the storms that were then gathering over fair France, and soon to culminate in that world's tragedy known as the French Revolution and the "Reign of Terror," seeking a new world beyond stormy seas and from stormier scenes. Hence it was that the first settlers that came into Scioto County were the rough and ragged soldiers of "the Virginia line" and the genteel and frightened periwig makers of the Court of Louis XVI.

THE FRENCH OCCUPATION.

The following graphic sketch of the French occupation is from the pen of the Hon. Elijah Glover, who before the period of the Civil War was one of the leading citizens of this city. He was a practicing attorney, banker and a man of high literary attainments, representing the county in the State Legislature. His father was one of the original settlers and a leading citizen of the village:

"It was a magnificent plan of empire conceived by Colbert, the great minister of Louis XVI, when, after Canada had been colonized by France; after the river St. Lawrence, with its grand expansion of inland seas, had been coasted by the missionary effort of Marquette and others; after the lower Mississippi had been discovered by De Sota, and after its entire length had been explored by the bold enterprise of La Salle, he undertook by all the means which his master could be induced to place at his disposal to surround the vast territory bordered by these immense navigable waters with a cordon of missionary and military posts, looking forward, with the prophetic eye of true genius, to the time when the possessions, settlements and control of these extensive and fertile regions would render his beloved France one among the greatest of nations, and his august master eminently worthy of the appellation of "Grand Monarque," which was even then accorded to him.

Colbert, no doubt, hoped that while England held in colonial subjection the territory washed by the Atlantic and limited on the west by the Allegheny range, he could secure for France that more fertile and extensive region reaching north and west from the same ridge to the lakes and the Mississippi, or even to an unknown extent beyond.

But the colonies and mother country claimed title to an indefinite expansion westward, and in the early part of the eighteenth century took measures to secure their claims by outposts and pioneer settlements, further and further into the wild and forest regions. France, as far as she could, pursued the same course, by pushing her outposts further and further southward. Thus the two nations, rivals for centuries, with the English Channel only dividing them, still maintained their rivalry, though changing its theatre of action to the heart of the Western continent.

In carrying out this rivalry, the French saw the importance of controlling the Ohio river and its main tributaries. Hence they established posts at different points on the Ohio and Wabash. On the latter was the important post of Vincennes. On the main stream, appropriately called "La Belle Riviere," they established several posts, and about the year 1750 built Fort Duquesne at its head, now the city of Pittsburg. It was at a point about nine miles from this Fort, when in the conflict for empire between the two nations, Braddock with an English and provincial force, was defeated by the French and Indians in 1755.

Among the posts on the Ohio was an incipient one at the mouth of the Scioto, on the western side, begun, as is believed, prior to the building of Fort Duquesne. Among the evidences of the occupation of this point, is the fact that American settlers after the Revolutionary war found a large area destitute of forest trees, the old stumps decayed, and an occasional fruit tree in their place. Ornaments and domestic utensils were also found, evidently belonging to a civilized race. And further, the writer of this sketch has in his possession a silver coronation medal of Louis XV., about the size of an old French coin dated 1722, the year he ascended the throne, and having upon it a representation of the ceremony. This was found in Alexandria and had doubtless been worn upon the person as an ornament, for several fragments of silver chain were found with it, and upon its edge is a loop through which the chain was passed, and which is worn through, thereby, no doubt, occasioning its loss—one much regretted, we may suppose by its owner.

ALEXANDRIA

On this piece of bottom land, being part of survey 508 in the military district, patented to Alexander Parker, by patent bearing date February 15, 1798, and signed by John Adams, President, was laid out the town of Alexandria. John Belli, of French descent, who was much of a gentleman, with the dress and polite manners of society east of the mountains, was the agent of Parker. It was thought a fine commercial point, being at the mouth of one of the most fertile valleys in the State, and no more advantageous mode being known at that time for bringing out the produce of the valley and making returns in merchandise, than that of navigating the large streams that drained it, by keel and flat boats. This part of the State was then included in Adams County, the county of Scioto not being established until May 1803. The plat of the town bears upon its margin a notice by Mr. Belli that "the sale in Alexandria will commence at 12 o'clock, at the corner of Thomas street on the river, on lot No. 19, dated June 4, 1799. A number of lots were doubtless sold on that day, although the earliest deeds are dated 1802-3, the purchasers paying a part down and receiving title bonds to secure the purchase until the final payment. Among the names that appear on the earliest deeds, as purchasers, are those of William Russell, Phillip Dyer, David Gharky, John Belli, Christian Bottleman, Thomas Waller, Thomas Collins, Conrad Thorne, Phillip Moore and Stephen Smith. Thomas Collins afterwards associate Judge, was a boat man, and established a sort of warehouse and store on the bank of the river. David Gharky was a German, a cabinet maker by trade, of good education, subsequently Auditor of Scioto County and a man of considerable influence in that early day. Thomas Waller was a physician, a native of Virginia, and came to Alexandria in 1801 from Pennsylvania, with his young wife and infant daughter. They came on horseback, one of the two only available means at that time (the other being by river from Pittsburg), bringing their child on a pillow held by turns before them. While a resident of Alexandria, Dr. Waller, served one session in the Legislature. He had an extensive practice in his profession and subsequently became a leading citizen of Portsmouth.

Alexandria flourished for a few years, but the floods of the Ohio, then little understood, submerged the place on several occasions, the highest portions of the town being only fifty feet above low water, and other portions less, while the ordinary floods were over fifty feet and the extraordinary over sixty feet above low water. This subjected the inhabitants to great difficulty and danger, and led them to consider the propriety of changing their location."—Elijah Glover.

THE FIRST SETTLERS

Coming into the Ohio Valley were amazed at the wonderful fertility of the soil, the vast sylvan solitudes and the ever changing scenery. After Wayne's defeat of the Indians and the consequent treaties made with them, they had withdrawn to the Illinois Country and this valley was tenantless. The forest with its foliage, vines and flowers swept down to the water's edge. Buffalo roamed on the upper plains, the woodland was full of deer, bear, wild turkeys, and resonant with the music of wild birds. The settlers came from the east coast where river floods were unknown, and reckoned only on the ordinary rise and fall of the tides. Hence they built their first settlements on low bottoms, or moved far back into the hills to escape the fevers that lurked in the low lands. It was half a century before the great phenomenon of the Ohio freshets, rising a wall of water sixty feet above the summer water level, were fully understood and appreciated.

THE AGUE

Beside the recurring floods, dismantling and sweeping away their cabins, fences and live stock, the early settlers as far as up to 1860 waged war against a more insidious and determined foe. As fast as clearings were made in the lowlands, and the plow turned up the rich alluvium with its accumulated fertility of ages, making and storing up riches, while the valley of the Nile was being cropped, there was let loose the ague. Charles Dickens in "Martin Chuzzlewit" does not overdraw the picture. The town of Alexandria and the town laid out by the New York Steamboat and Dry Dock Company at the mouth of the Scioto, and hundreds of other settlements, just as ambitious and unfortunate, met with disaster through the mistakes of well-meaning men who counted not on the Ohio freshet and knew not of that awful dragon, the ague, "the shakes," that lay sleeping beneath the fertile soil, to be awakened by the axe and lashed into fury by the plowshare. With the ague a man was well one day and in a raging fever the next. Every man knew the hour his fit came on. It came on with a chill. One could lay in the sun in mid-summer and feel like frozen in an iceberg. With the chill was the "shakes." A strong man would "shake a bed to pieces, the tinware off the walls and the lights out of the windows." The burning fever which followed the "shakes" was possibly as serious as the chill.

Since 1860 good drainage and applied sanitary treatment have destroyed the dragon.

PORTSMOUTH LAID OUT

Henry Massie, a brother of Nathaniel who laid out the town of Chillicothe in 1801, received from Thomas Jefferson, President of the United States, a patent for several sections of land on the east bank at the mouth of the Scioto, and laid out the town of Portsmouth. This plat occupied the high ridge extending from the site of the present Scioto river bridge to Chillicothe street. On this plat Front street was called Water street, second street was called First street, and Third street was Back street. Mr. Massie, hailing from Portsmouth, Virginia, called his new town Portsmouth, Ohio, and made flattering overtures to the flood-stricken settlers of Alexandria to come over and occupy the land. But the site of Portsmouth was at that time in swamp and forest, cut up with ravines, and where it was not mud, was a tangle of brush, and altogether an unsightly and dreary looking place, and for several years the settlement appeared to be a failure. But in the spring of 1805 a recurring flood settled the fate of Alexandria, and its people gradually abandoned their homes, and rebuilt their modest cabins in a cluster on the ridge at the foot of First street, now Second street.

The buildings at Alexandria were gradually dismantled or rotted down, a large portion of its site in course of time was undermined and swept away by the river, and the remainder is now cultivated as farm land.

At the lower end of the town plat the Scioto river came to within about twenty rods of the Ohio, then by a broad circular sweep receded and entered the Ohio at the mouth of the "Old Bed," about one mile below. At a later date among the many marvelous engineering feats, or perhaps freaks, of the Ohio Canal Construction, this narrow isthmus was cut through and the course of the Scioto turned bodily into its present channel, and pitched into the waters of the Ohio at the foot of Front and Second streets.

THE FIRST TOWNSMEN

Emanuel Traxler was the first settler. Uriah Barber settled on the town site in 1796, building a log house near the site of the old National Hotel. He afterwards with John Jones (the original) bought the first two lots for $5.00 each. The little settlement in the west end grew slowly but steadily. Hon. Elijah Glover built the first tavern, in one of which Eli Glaver afterwards kept a book store and printing office. General William Kendal kept the first store. Court was held in the front room of a log residence, and afterwards in David Gharky's cooper shop.

The first brick house was built in 1808, the bricks being brought from Maysville (then Limestone) in keel boats. It stood on the corner of Jefferson and Front streets.

Most of the settlers came by keel boats down the river. A few, however, came by way of Chillicothe. It was perilous trip from Chillicothe through the forest in those days, and could only be made in a dry time, the trip occupying several days. The first road blazed followed the comb of the hills some miles east of the Scioto, the lowlands being practically impassible. The town was hard to get into. One of the first difficulties that presented itself was to get across the "Chicken Gut," which was a most formidable barrier, occupying the present site of Third street, a deep, broad and muddy morass. This was finally accomplished by a corduroy road reaching from the present Tribune corner to the site of the Court House. In 1810 Portsmouth had a population of 350. The center of the town was Massie street.

INCORPORATION

The town was incorporated by statute December 29, 1814. The common council met March 15, 1815 and consisted of Thomas Waller, president; N. K. Clough, recorder; David Gharky, treasurer; Nathan Glover, Samuel G. Burt, Josiah Shackford, William Houston and William Kendall

EARLY LEGISLATION

This was an active, busy and able Council. Its first ordinances and rules were wise and comprehensive. It ordered a market house built on the site of the Massie Block. Some of the first ordinances at this time seem very funny. Our principal business was on the river and the town was the headquarters for keel-boatmen and sailors. An ordinance was passed to "regulate the conduct of boatmen, and keep them off the streets at night." The office of town marshal was no sinecure. Another ordinance provided for the purchase and maintenance of a town bull. Dogs were banished from the city limits entirely, by ordinance passed January 1816. In 1815 the street supervisor appears upon the scene to open up ditches and provide drainage. The Court House was built in the middle of Market street between Front and Second streets in 1816. The first three-story brick was built on the east corner of Front and Market. On the third floor was the Opera House of that day. It was built by the grandfather of Col. Floyd L. Smith, secretary of the present Opera House company.

EARLY MANUFACTURING

Manufacturing commenced with David Gharky's spinning factory propelled by horse power and superintended by Ed. Cranston, a machinist. The same year Josiah Shackford and Daniel Corwin built the first Flour Mill.

THE FIRST STEAMBOAT

In 1829 Aaron Fuller obtained a grant from the Council to build a steamboat "on the commons in front of the town."

From 1829 to 1837 a man was hired by Council to cut the dog fennel from the streets and alleys for $7.00 per annum.

February 27, 1820 the settlement was almost swept away by a disastrous fire.

At this time Portsmouth began to occupy a commanding commercial position, her business men were of a sturdy and enterprising spirit. They took steps to secure the building of State roads in this section, and established the Commercial Bank of Scioto with Thomas Waller president and Elijah McKenne, cashier.

This bank, an exceptionally strong institution, closed business in 1843 with a surplus of $27,662.33. Its business was continued uninterruptedly through the Portsmouth National Bank, John G. Peebles (since deceased) president, lately merged in the present First National Bank of this city.

Until 1827 the town grew very slowly. In that year there was one bank, four grocery stores, four dry goods stores, two nail factories (the nails were made by hand), one cotton factory, one carding and one fulling machine, four cabinet shops, one silversmith, one saddle-shop, five carpenters, two hatters, one wheelright, and two schools. The population was 570.

THE OHIO CANAL

The decade of 1830 to 1840 was a period of great advancement, industrial and commercial activity, consequent upon the building and operation of the Ohio Canal, of which Portsmouth was the southern terminus. In 1830 the population was 1378. The Canal was completed in 1832 at a cost of $5,000,000.00. The shallow stagnant ditch and dilapidated masonry that now reaches across this broad state is a sad memento of the once splendid highway of commerce before the railroad era. It was a stupendous undertaking for that period and its builders were brave, gigantic and heroic. It was an era of wilderness, mud roads, hardships and unmeasurable distances. In 1835 the canal was new, deep and limpid, busy from end to end with lively commerce. The isolated villages along its banks became towns and the towns cities. It furnished a new and luxurious mode of travel to the far east, found far away markets for the teeming products of the valley, and commerce from Old York State found a way to New Orleans and the Gulf. At its terminus, Portsmouth, thronged traders and inland sailors. It was the liveliest period in the history of the town. In 1812 the canal tolls collected at this port were $37,325.16, and this was the fourth port of importance on the line. A daily line of splendid passenger packets was put on June 1st, 1837.

THE NEW YORK DRY DOCK BUBBLE

Vast schemes were entered upon and wild dreams that were never realized. The Scioto River was lifted out of its bed and a new channel cut for a new confluence with the Ohio. The old bed with a square mile of broad bottom contiguous was torn up, cut into bisecting canals, dry docks, etc. The New York Steamboat and Dry Dock Company laid off a new town, threw up dykes, ran off avenues and build vast ware houses, but they had not considered the spring floods of the Ohio which resisted and finally overwhelmed all their Utopian projects.

The canal, however, was a solid reality, the agricultural lands of the valley leaped into value at once, corn and other products found a market at greatly enhanced prices. It was an era of wonderful development. Commerce flowed up and down the valley through Portsmouth as an entry port, like a rising tide. Portsmouth became rich and solid. After merchandising came steamboat building and manufacturing. Attempts were made to navigate the Scioto river with steam craft to Chillicothe, and Portsmouth capital engaged largely in the carrying trade on the Ohio river.

THE GAYLORD MILL

Was built in 1832, being the first to be constructed west of Wheeling, and Portsmouth soon became identified as the iron metropolis of Southern Ohio.

THE STREETS RENAMED

In 1839, by ordinance, the streets were re-named and given the names they now bear. The same year the Portsmouth and Columbus turnpike was built; the town of Portsmouth assisting the enterprise to the extent of $20,000.00. In 1810 the population was 2,500; in 1850 it reached 3,867, and in 1851 the Legislature erected the village into a city and the city

COMMENCED BUILDING RAILROADS

Already the steam railroad had pushed across the Alleghanies, and the citizens of Portsmouth were early in the movement of railroad building. It was a bold undertaking for a town of less than 1,000 inhabitants and a county of less than 18,000, at a time when money was scarce, and wealth had not come to give courage and confidence to the project of building a railroad; then a new and untried thing.

In the summer and fall of 1858 the matter of building a railroad down the Scioto Valley took definite shape, but Pike County lacked courage, and Ross County went off after the project of building a cross line from Marietta to Cincinnati. The generalship of the railroad promoters of Portsmouth, however, stood the test; they changed front and pointed a line out through Jackson and McArthur to Newark, and the Portsmouth & Hocking Valley was incorporated. Vinton, Hocking, Perry and Licking Counties failed to do their part, but Portsmouth and Jackson went ahead with the construction. Work was commenced in 1850, and the road reached Jackson on a day of great civic and military splendor and general rejoicing and hilarity on August 15, 1855. A few years afterward a junction was made at Hamden with the newly constructed M. & C. R. R., and Portsmouth opened up a more rapid connection with the outside world. Its construction cost this city and county something like $20,000.00, which was a tremendous tax-strain on our people. This railroad had a broad gauge, and while running over inexhaustible beds of steam-coal for several years, cord-wood was burned in the engines; and it sometimes happened that passengers had to get out in the woods and assist the train crew to "wood up."

There was no telegraph line along the road, and in the event of an accident the passengers were compelled to camp out until a brakeman could borrow a horse, or walk the distance across the country to Portsmouth or Jackson to secure relief. The cars were switched in the Portsmouth yards by a bob-tailed mule. The passenger coaches and freight cars were built at Murray & Moore's foundry and machine shops, and the first coaches turned out cost several thousand dollars each, and in point of upholstering and finish compared favorably with the palace cars of to-day. Fish-plates and bolts on roads were not in use then, and the rails were joined loosely together with "chairs." Conversation was impossible in the coaches, and when going at a high rate of speed it was necessary to hold a tight grip on the arms of the seat to keep from being shot out through the roof; it was a wonderful road, and became a money maker. Charcoal iron furnaces sprang into busy life along the line which made a great market for Portsmouth jobbers and an opening for Portsmouth capital. A tremendous output of pig-iron was brought to this city to be reshipped by river, and west end territory became a vast pig-iron yard. At the same time trade on the canal had not yet lost its vigor, and the lower ends of Front and Second streets were busy marts of trade and transfer of freight from river, railroad and canal.

Front street became a long vista of jobbing houses in all lines of trade. The jobbers of those days could not depend upon a supply of goods whenever needed. Hence they were obliged to buy a year's supply at a time. They bought in season and "when the sign was right." Not an uncommon feature of the Portsmouth landscape would be a huge steamboat discharging her whole cargo, covering the entire grade, of southern products or eastern goods, for one single firm. This road now a branch of the B. & O. passes through a great mineral belt, along which there are a score of furnaces, coal mines and large fire brick plants all tributary to Portsmouth.

THE SCIOTO VALLEY RAILROAD

Was agitated as early as 1848, a charter obtained and subscriptions taken. But it was not until 1875 that the Napoleonic George D. Chapman appeared upon the scene and commenced the construction of the road. Under the leadership of George Davis, Col. Peter Kinney, Hon. Wells A. Hutchins and others, the people of Scioto County rallied to the front and made the project a success. Portsmouth and Scioto County contributed first and last $275,000.00 and the road was in operation to Columbus by 1877. It is now a part of, and one of the most valuable divisions of the Norfolk & Western Trunk Line.

THE CINCINNATI & EASTERN

Now also a part of the Norfolk & Western system and one of the most valuable commercial feeders to this city was built in 1876-1878. It was projected by enterprising men at the Clermont and Brown County end of the line, but it came into and through Scioto County, largely promoted by the indefatigable efforts of Col. J. E. Wharton, almost an octogenarian, who went on foot through the wilds of the West Side, secured the right of way, canvassed the City for subscriptions, and went everywhere and did everything necessary to secure aid and concessions until the work was finally accomplished. In the same manner Col. Wharton built and equipped the Portsmouth Public Library.

THE CHESAPEAKE & OHIO RAILROAD

Along the south bank of the Ohio River was completed but a few years ago and is now one of the trunk lines across the continent.

THE DECADE OF 1850—1860

We return now to the historic order of the growth and development of this expanding community. In 1856 there was in operation: The Portsmouth Iron Mills, established 1831; Portsmouth Manufacturing Establishment, 1812; Portsmouth Brewery, 1810; Portsmouth Woolen Mills, 1817; Fuller & Carey's Sash Factory, 1817; Rhode's Planing Mill, 1850; Scioto Rolling Mill, 1855; Scioto Foundry, 1853; Portsmouth Axe Factory, 1854; Portsmouth Gas Light Co., 1855; Washington Foundry & Machine Shops, 1856; Purdum's Door, Sash & Blind Factory, 1855; People's Foundry, Haggie & Lewis' Wheelbarrow Factory, Hall's Wheelbarrow Factory, a Soap & Candle Factory and a Mineral Water Factory.

The material growth of this City in this period is shown by the tax valuations of 1847, $553,200.00; 1853, $1,259,187.00; and in 1857 $2,447,621.00.

THE FIRST DIRECTORY OF PORTSMOUTH

Was published by Samuel P. Drake in 1856, it contained 80 pages and was bound in paper.

In 1860 the population had increased to 6,055. The city had now grown into a manufacturing town of some importance and being the metropolis of the coal and iron region had become a jobbing town of still more pretensions. The Ohio canal was in the hey-day of its usefulness. The Portsmouth & Hocking Valley Railroad had passed the experimental stage, and its great mineral and iron producing belt was almost wholly tributary to Portsmouth, while great freighters, palatial steamboats, fleets of barges and lesser crafts, plying on the upper and lower rivers, were owned, controlled and commanded by Portsmouth ship masters.

Portsmouth was now ready to enter upon her Civil War experiences as a military post on the border line and during part of the time as an armed camp.

OUR MILITARY HISTORY

Commenced probably with the Old Fort, commanding the mouth of the Scioto, built by an unknown race, and occupied successively by the French and Indians as a trading post and bulwark against British aggressions upon the Louisiana Province. After the French withdrawal this was a favorite place for savage ambushes upon the flat boats of the early settlers. But our true military history commences with the two companies of tall fellows in leather breeches and coonskin caps, who went out under Captains Daniel Roop and John Lucas (who afterwards laid out the town of Lucasville) and helped to form the First Regiment O. V. I., in the war against Great Britain. The muster rolls of these two companies are replete with familiar names of this city and county, such as the Devers, Noels, Cadots, Duduits, etc. After some skirmishes in which our backwoodsmen obtained considerable glory, they were ingloriously surrendered by General Hull, and being paroled were left to find their way home through the northern wilderness as best they could. In 1813 a regiment was called out under Colonel Peter Noel and a company under Captain John Lindsay, but saw no service. Captain Roop was celebrated as an Indian fighter, and was twice court martialed for lack of military dress and equipment. It is recorded, however, that what little fighting was done, and heroism displayed by that unfortunate army of invasion, was to the credit of the Scioto county companies

THE MEXICAN WAR

For the Mexican War, Captain Ed. Hamilton, then editor of the Tribune, organized a company of one hundred men, who went into battle under Gen. Zachary Taylor at Monterey, and suffered a loss of seven men. This company for its heroic conduct was especially mentioned in the bulletins of the battle. The company participated in several other severe engagements, and came home in triumph. Capt. Hamilton was rewarded by being appointed Secretary of the Territory of Oregon. The late Capt. W. W. Reilly and Capt. A. B. Cole were survivors of that war.

THE CIVIL WAR

But it was during the long, dark days of the Civil War, which storm broke in 1861, that Scioto County went into the war business in earnest. Being an outpost on Mason and Dixon's line—a port on the Ohio River that was "vexed on its way to the sea"—it became an important military post, and for quite a period an armed camp. Its iron works were converted into armories, its warehouses into commissary depots, its boat yards into navy yards, its commons into camps, and its streets resounded again and again with the tread of marching battalions.

When the signal gun was fired at Ft. Sumpter the young men of this city were organized, drilling and awaiting the call! And when it came the Kinney Light Guards, under Capt. George B. Bailey, were among the first troops to respond, and became Company G of the First Ohio. The lieutenants were William H. Raynor, afterwards colonel, and Alfred Kinney; Attorney George O. Newman was first sergeant; Capt. Barton, 2d; Col. Henry E. Jones, 3d; S. H. Cox, 4th, and Col. Tom. Sickles, 5th. The corporals were Pat Prendergrast, W. S. Witherow, J. J. Glidden and others. They were in the first skirmish of the war, suffering severe loss at Vienna, and soon afterwards participated in the battle of Bull Run, assisting in holding the rear guard of the shattered army, and covering the advance of the Confederates upon Washington.

Capt. Jesse Appler and Capt. John A. Turley (both afterward promoted to colonelcy), took two companies into the Second Ohio Regt. Capt. Henry McDowell organized the next company and joined the Groesbeck Cincinnati Regiment. Capt. W. W. Reilly, a Mexican War veteran, and Capt. S. A. Currie each raised a company in 1861. Col. Oscar F. Moore became colonel, and J. V. Robinson, jr., major of the Thirty-third Regt., made up partly in Scioto County. The Fifty-sixth, under Col. Peter Kinney and Col. Raynor, was an exclusively Portsmouth Regiment. It was recruited at Camp Morrow. The Ninety-first was made up partly in this county, officered by Col. John A. Turley and Col. B. F. Coats. The Fifty-third was commanded by Col. Jesse Appler. Battery L, Newt Robinson and Frank Gibbs, captains, perhaps tore a bigger hole in the Confederacy than any other organization of similar character.

Among the organizations contributed by this county was Col. Hurd's company in the Second Kentucky, Capt. C. A. Barton's rifle company and a number of others.

These various commands were in every march, battle and siege, both in the armies of the East and the West, everywhere with prowess, courage and distinction. In 1863 out of an enrollment of 4797 men fit for military duty Scioto County had 2216 men in the field—46 per cent. During the war the people of Portsmouth from their private means raised a soldiers' relief fund of a round $100,000.00. But it was not all the army; being a river town, hundreds went into the Mosquito Fleet on the Mississippi, several gunboats being manned and officered by Portsmouth men, and others were in the transport service.

For five years Portsmouth made war its business. The Gaylord Mill ran on armor plate, and other shops were engaged in the manufacture of munitions of war. Gunboats, low, black and sinister swung from anchor in midstream, and cannon frowned from points of vantage, for this city was in the wake of raiders.

Through Portsmouth, the fresh levees from the north poured, proud in their shining panoply of war, and hopeful and defiant against the southern breeze. Through Portsmouth after each successive defeat they came routing back in rags, sometimes starved and dispirited to rest and re-equip on the safe side of the Ohio. Thus to the close of war they rolled back and forth until final victorious troops came marching home and melted away into the peaceful pursuits of life.

THE SPANISH WAR

Is of such recent date that we need only say that in Company H, boys of the same lineage, bearing bearing almost the same names that they did in 1812, 1817 and 1861, Newmans, Noels, etc., "went up against it," in a still more far away clime and came back with the same old swinging stride, to a new tune perhaps, "There'll be a Hot Time," but with the same spirit, as when they marched to "The Girl I Left Behind Me." The officers of Company H, in the Spanish-American War were: Captains Stanley Pritchard and James Smith (of the Smith Lumber Co.); Lieutenants: Frank Pratt, P. Kinney Funk and Floyd Thurman; Sergeants: Percy Reed, Emmett McKeown, Russell Newman, Charles Reed, Frank Alger; Berry Alger, John L. McMonigle and others.

THE DECADE OF 1870—1880

In 1870 the population was 10,572, nearly double that of '60." This decade brought the street railway, the water works, the Hamilton-Peebles Free Reading Rooms and the Col. Wharton Public Library.

The aggregate sale of merchandise in 1880 was $4,896,000.00, while our 181 manufacturing establishments enjoyed an output of $1,683,000.00. (This does not exceed the output of the shoe factories alone for the year 1900).

In this decade was witnessed the abandonment of the Ohio canal, a withdrawal of river interests, cessation of boat building, the long chain of charcoal iron furnaces along the branch going out of blast, our jobbing houses beginning to diminish; salesmen withdrawing from the Kanawha valley; old Front street firms turning their signs to the wall; the Gaylord Rolling mill ceasing to beat; the long line of Wheel & Spoke Works in the North End going into idleness. On the face of things this looks like decadence; but in fact this was a period of change to substantial prosperity. Portsmouth was changing front and adopting new lines of industry, and new processes in old lines. It found new and competing lines of railroad to all points and no longer depends wholly upon water transportation. It is going into the manufacture of shoes to beat the world. The canal boat with its bell and the rolling coach with its bugle are seen and heard no more. Our traveling salesmen are no longer haunting the Kanawha, and Tug Fork, and stop within hearing of the steamboat whistles; but are going out into the plains, to the Pacific, Mexico and Honolulu, and laying their wares down in the old Yankee towns. Where we were making charcoal pig pig iron, we are converting the works into fire brick kilns; giving employment to more labor and digging in new lines for new sources of wealth.

In 1890 the city's population was 12,394; in 1900 the population was 17,870; and in 1906 estimated at 25,000.

The manufacturing output now exceeds $8,000,000.00 per annum, and there are 8,000 people engaged in the productive industries of this city. Probably in proportion to the population there is no city in Ohio that exceeds these figures. During the past six years the new additions to Portsmouth have doubled in area the city proper, and in that time over 1,000 new structures were built, costing from $5,000 to $100,000 each. The larger number of these are dwellings, as Portsmouth is essentially a City of Homes.

THE FIRE DEPARTMENT

Of this city commenced with an ordinance requiring each inhabitant to keep one fire bucket full of water on his premises, and be ready to grab it and run at the first alarm of the school-house bell. This was in 1820. In 1831 a company with red shirts and tin hats was organized, and a fire engine was built by George Stevenson and Jas. C. Davis at the Portsmouth Foundry and Machine Works. It was a two-handled pump on four wheels, called the "Deluge," painted red with gold stripes, and was the pride of civic parades for many an after-year. In 1871 a steam fire engine was purchased and a fire department organized; but it was some years before the "Old Mashon Companies," with their peculiar yell, fire-horns and axes, completely left scenes of action.

The department now consists of three steamers, hook and ladder truck, a full equipment of chemical extinguishers, etc. Two handsomely built stations, one located on West Seventh street and one on Gallia, are commodious, and filled with a fine complement of brave fire laddies. A third station will soon be established on the Third Terrace.

WATER WORKS

Were talked of as far back as 1856, but up to 1870 water was pumped from the river with a two gallon can on the end of a pole, and hauled around town in tierces propelled by a blind horse, always gray in color and venerable in appearance. In 1870 the Holly Water Works were built by trustees Philip H. Kelly, Charles S. Green and Louis C. Robinson, at a cost of $117,000.00, with two miles of pipe and a pumping capacity of 1,500,000 gallons per day. The present works have two independent sets of pumps and a capacity of 11,000,000 gallons per diem. And the works are now on a paying basis, with a handsome and swelling surplus. Within the next few years reservoirs will be constructed and a new pumping station will be built above the sewage of the city. A Commission has recently been appointed, and is now at work examining conditions and plans for the purpose of adopting a plan of new works.

PORTSMOUTH STREET RAILWAY

The company was organized in 1875 with W. Q. Adams, president, S. E. Varner, superintendent, and built about two miles of track. It was a horse car line, and the horse was more often a mule. Dr. Enos Reed managed the road for several years but it did not pay. He was succeeded by Capt. James Skelton, who, with characteristic resource, energy and pluck, kept it going until the dawn of the electric era. We now have a splendidly equipped system of some twelve miles, with Levi D. York, president. It was built by George Davis, A. T. Holcomb, H. S. Grimes, Floyd L. Smith and others.

INTERURBAN LINES

An interurban line with this city as an objective point is now built and in operation from Columbus to Chillicothe.

The Camden Interstate with the same objective is securing right of way between Hanging Rock and Sciotoville.

The Cincinnati, Georgetown & Portsmouth has completed a survey to this city. A line is projected from Pomeroy via Jackson.

LIBRARIES

The first public library was opened in 1831. The leading spirit was Mrs. Eliza Dupuy, an authoress of some note, who then resided at the corner of Second and Washington streets, where she wrote "Morton: a Tale of the Revolution." This literary circle consisted of Dr. G. S. B. Hempstead, physician and archaeologist; Wm. V. Peck, judge of the supreme court; Edward Hamilton, iron master; John Glover and Francis Cleveland, author and civil engineer. This library was on Front and Market streets. It was finally transferred to the rooms of the Y. M. C. A. and after the demise of that organization it became the nucleus of the Hamilton-Peebles Reading Rooms lately kept on West Second street by the Misses Adele and Venetia Ramsey. This worthy enterprise was founded and kept alive by Mrs. Rachel Hamilton and John G. Peebles and managed by a committee of ladies.

THE WHARTON LIBRARY

At the corner of Fifth and Court streets was the crowning of the life work of the venerable J. E. Wharton, who died November 3, 1881, within a few years after the library was opened to the public, and shortly after the necessary legislation had been obtained that made it a permanent and enduring establishment. Col. Wharton was for many years a prominent journalist of Wheeling, W. Va. Throughout his long life he moved in an atmosphere of public spirit.

HENRY A. LORBERG

The name of Henry A. Lorberg will ever be inseparably linked with the Portsmouth City Library. A few years ago, on his own initiative, he secured a Carnegie donation of $50,000.00 for the construction of a library building, with no encouragement or assistance until the money was secured. The present splendid structure on Gallia avenue is a monument to his indefatigable and patriotic efforts on behalf of Portsmouth. Mr. Lorberg has secured other benefits to this city, which busier and more selfish men have usually overlooked. He has, also, by well-written articles, printed publications, souvenirs, etc., done more than any other single person to advertise his home town, its attractions, and possibly awaken in the minds of his fellow citizens a realization of the many peculiar scenic and picturesque localities of their environment, while cultivating an appreciation of higher ideals.

ELFEMOSYNARY INSTITUTIONS

The Children's Home, a magnificent structure, overlooking the city from the site of the citadel of the ancient mound builders, was erected in 1877, the result of the labors of an association of ladies of whom Mrs. Dr. D. B. Cotton was president.

The Home for Aged Women, another handsome pile overlooking the River View Park and the broad sweep of the Ohio River, was the result of the labors of another association of ladies.

IRON WORKS

The Portsmouth Iron and Steel Works, afterward known as the Bloom Forge and the Gaylord Mill, were built in 1831, and were the first iron works established west of Wheeling. The original proprietors were John Glover and Jacob P. Noel.

The Portsmouth Foundry & Machine Works, owned and managed by Captains William and Enos Moore, commenced in 1840, and were a development from John L. Ward's blacksmith shop. This establishment manufactured all the cars for the Hocking Valley Railroad.

The present principal iron works of this city are: The Portsmouth Steel Co.; The Portsmouth Pressed Steel Co.; The Portsmouth Stove and Range Works; The Ohio Stove Foundry; Simpson Bros.' Foundry and Machine Shops, and a number of smaller establishments manufacturing stoves, ranges and metal novelties. The annual production of iron and iron products may be estimated at $8,000,000.00 in value.

LUMBER MANUFACTURE

Horace Leet commenced the lumber manufacture here in 1850. The firm of The H. Leet Lumber Co. is now one of the largest, strongest and most enterprising establishments in this section. Besides the re-manufacture of lumber this is a great manufacturing and shipping point for wheel stock, veneers, ties, furniture, wheelbarrows, etc.

SHOE MANUFACTURING

Shoe manufacturing is the largest industry. Our output last year was almost four million pairs. The Selby Shoe Co. is one of the largest in the world, with a capacity of three thousand pairs of shoes per day; 300 an hour. An army of 5,000 people are engaged principally in making ladies' fine shoes. No cheap shoes are made in Portsmouth.

This industry was commenced by R. Bell in the decade of 1850-1860 in the upper floor of a building that stood on the site of the Washington Hotel. He was a large and enterprising shoe merchant, carrying a large stock of goods made in Massachusetts. Among other of his enterprises he had a natty little steamboat called the "Silver Heels" for the exclusive use of his salesmen in the upper river trade. He brought a force of workmen from the East. There was no power and very little machinery, and the lasts were of the crudest pattern. One of the peculiar features of this factory was the employment of a "reader" who occupied an elevated platform and read to the men while working at their benches.

The average number of persons employed in the shoe manufacturing industry in this city, in July this year, was 5,728. The output is 13,000 pairs per day, or 3,900,000 per annum. If the cattle that wore the hides were marshaled two abreast in a column moving from the Portsmouth public square at sunrise, the head of the column would reach the Statehouse by sunset—and the rear still be in this vicinity.

FIRE AND PAVING BRICK

Some time in the '80s W. Q. Adams, then president of The Portsmouth Fire Brick Co. and a man of enterprise and infinite resource, went down East to negotiate the sale of bonds, for a loan of a quarter of a million on a fire-brick industry, and incidentally to promote the building of a railroad, but found considerable difficulty in making his financial friends down East understand that a brick-yard at Portsmouth, O., meant a great deal more than "a nigger and a mule."

Within a radius of a few miles there are now in operation ten large plants, making fire brick, furnace blocks, locomotive linings, vitrified pavers, and ornamental building brick, capitalized at over $3,000,000, owning thousands of acres of clay lands, and operating many miles of railroad.

RAILROAD TERMINALS

Since the last issue of this Directory, the car shops of the Norfolk and Western Ry. have been completed at an expense of $500,000.00. The pay roll at the terminals for the month of July, this year, 1906, was $91,000.00.

SAVINGS BANKS

There are in full operation six building and savings associations in which there was deposited, at the time of their last annual reports, $1,256,213.00. It is fairly estimated that on July 1st, this year, the savings of Portsmouth labor on deposit in these institutions exceeded $1,300,000.00.

NEW IMPROVEMENTS

Since our last issue there has been constructed in this city, as shown by the City Auditor's report, five hundred and twenty-two houses, and in Clay township within the environs covered by this Directory, four hundred and ninety-two structures. These include the N. & W. Railway shops, as completed, $500,000.00; Masonic Temple, $80,000.00; Carlyle Brick Plant, $50,000.00; Turley Block, $45,000.00; Bannou-Labold Building, $30,000.00, and the new School Houses, $50,000.00.

This city has twenty-six churches. The Church of the Holy Redeemer congregation (Catholic), Father McGuirk pastor, are now building a splendid new church edifice. The First Christian Sunday School is the largest in Ohio.

Portsmouth has fifteen miles of paved streets, and has entered upon the policy of building at least two additional miles per annum.

The Gallia Pike will be widened, paved and make a broadway to Sciotoville. The West Side Road will be rebuilt, elevated, paved and made a boulevard to the foot-hills.

The entire River Front will be parked and beautified from Scioto to Chillicothe streets.

Within the next few years there will be constructed a new system of water works. The pumping station and intake will be moved to the Rock-bar above the city, and reservoirs built upon the hilltops.

A new court house will be erected, and the modern steel and concrete skyscraper will be among the improvements of the near future.

The interurban lines, from Columbus to Chillicothe, Cincinnati to West Union, the Camden Interstate to Hanging Rock, the Gallipolis, Jackson & Portsmouth will link-up with the local system; and the improvement of the Ohio River to a nine-foot stage of water, will place this city in a most favored position on the world's highway.

JOSEPH W. MITCHELL.

Street Directory

The streets of this city run with the points of the compass, north from the Ohio River and east from the Scioto River. The streets known by numbers as Front (First), Second, Third, etc., are parallel with the Ohio River, and run east from the Scioto River. In the following list, the streets are not given in alphabetical order, but are arranged as they actually run in one-two-three order, commencing at the Ohio River, and commencing at the Scioto River. The house-numbering system in vogue is antiquated, complicated and bad, and will so continue until the city government will courageously order and carry out the modern standard system of house-numbering, which will eventually become an imperative necessity. At present the streets running east from the Scioto River are numbered on a consecutive system divided east and west at Chillicothe street. The numbering on these streets has become very complicated and unsatisfactory. It was unnecessary and absurd to divide the city into east and west streets, when nature had provided an initial base for the numbering, on both the east and west, in the Ohio and Scioto Rivers. The streets running north from the Ohio River are properly numbered on the standard system, that is, allowing one hundred numbers to each block.

It will also be seen that streets in the city, and in additions, in territory that will soon be annexed to the city, are enjoying the same names.

POPULATION

The continued growth of the city, and the result of our Directory enumeration indicates, that our population on June 1, 1906, exceeds 24,000.

A careful estimate made by W. L. Reed, clerk of the School Board, based upon the school enumeration and government census of 1900, compared with the school enumeration of 1906, showed a population of over 26,000. The present estimate of 24,000 is conservative.
