Boys listen intently to the coach's instructions.

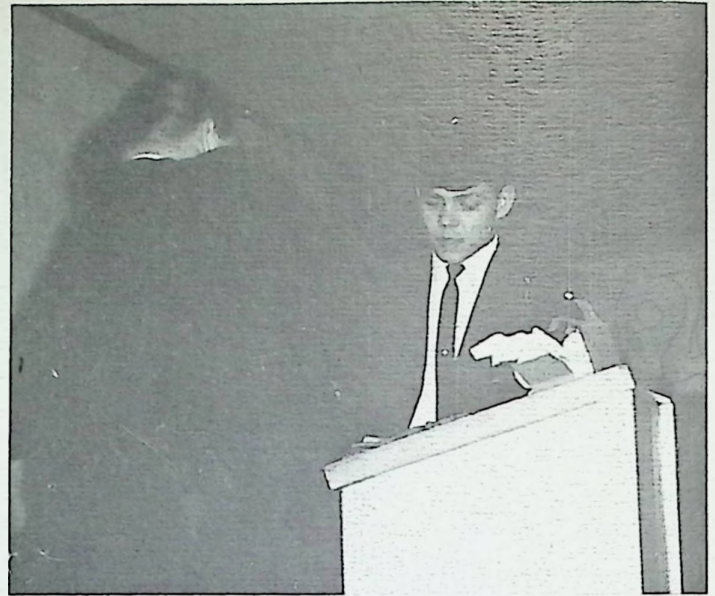

Freshman football is the transition between the desire to play and varsity action. A player on the frosh squad not only learns the fundamentals of the game but also concentrates on teamwork and sportsmanship.

Under the guidance of Coach George Lawson, the freshman team compiled a fine record while winning the respect of their opponents. They are a team of which N.H.S. can be justly proud.

to Attain Varsity Abilities

Reserve and Freshman basketball is an important part of a school's athletic program. Participation in these phases of sports introduces a boy to the rewards of teamwork and the value of good sportsmanship. These realizations are essential in the building of true varsity material.

Cheerleading; Work —

It takes teamwork, as well as hard work to build a good cheerleading squad. These girls work hard with summer practices, and spend a portion of their summer at camp learning to work together. Much pressure is placed on them, for chosen by the students, they have the responsibility of boosting the team's moral and also of setting an example of behavior which represents our school.

Band Presents Lively Half-Time Entertainment

The Scioto County Fair band concert and the River Days parade marked the beginning of the musical year for Northwest.

The Lonely Bull was one of the variety of shows presented by the N.H.S. band and majorettes as half-time entertainment during the fall season. Trips to the Pumpkin Show in Circleville and The Apple Festival in Jackson were added highlights for the 50 member band. Basketball season wrapped up the year for the "small but mighty" band.

Majorettes

After several weeks of intensive summer practice the N.H.S. majorettes made their debut at the annual Scioto County Fair. The girls marched to the strains of "Hosts of Freedom" as performed by the combined Scioto County bands.

Their later performances in the River Days parade, football half-time shows, and basketball appearances showed their increasing confidence and versatility as they portrayed a variety of choreographed routines ranging from modern dance to numbers with Spanish flavor.

Pam Emmett, feature twirler, kept the crowd enthralled with flashy fire baton action and double baton routines. Pam also led the band as drum majorette in all parades and drilling practices.

Through weeks of sticky summer days and long hours after school the girls worked to become an entertaining group. Their audiences will agree that they have accomplished their goal.

Future Vo-Tech School Offers Students New Horizons

The primary purpose of the Scioto County Joint Vocational School is to help give definite purpose and meaning to education by relating it to occupational goals. While it will provide the knowledge and work skills necessary for employment, it will also be more inclusive than training for job skills. It will be part of a well-rounded program of studies aimed at developing qualified, efficient workers.

The Scioto County Joint Vocational School must prepare youth and retrain adults for employment. These preparatory and retraining programs must provide the skills, knowledge, and safety judgments necessary for jobs not requiring a college degree.

BOE students study the fundamentals of the business realm. These students study shorthand, typing, accounting, as well as filing and record keeping.

BOE also offers practice in using business machines. By the middle of the school term, students are handling many secretarial duties, working in the main office and putting into practice the skills they have learned.

Students learn that advertisements are major concerns for businesses.

Rose, Debbie, and Vickie find office practice means more than just learning to run machines.

Linda, Pam, Cathy, Debbie, and Brenda practice working the machines they have been talking about in class.

Home Economics is taught by Mrs. Pamela Cormany and Mrs. Ramona Carver, who is very camera shy. Home Economics students are taught the basics and encouraged to be creative.

In sewing classes the girls learn to cut out dress patterns, sew smooth seams, put in zippers, and all other basic dressmaking tasks. After this, they learn to create new patterns from the basic ones.

Candy, cookies, ice cream, and complete dinners are only a few of the things prepared in cooking classes. Delectable odors coming from the home economics corridor made going to classes enjoyable.

All classes were required to do a home project also. The students could choose any project that benefitted their home or community. These projects were graded during home visits made by Mrs. Carver and Mrs. Cormany.

Diana Euton pins a new mini length hem into Judy Powell's dress. Girls help each other do various sewing and cooking activities.

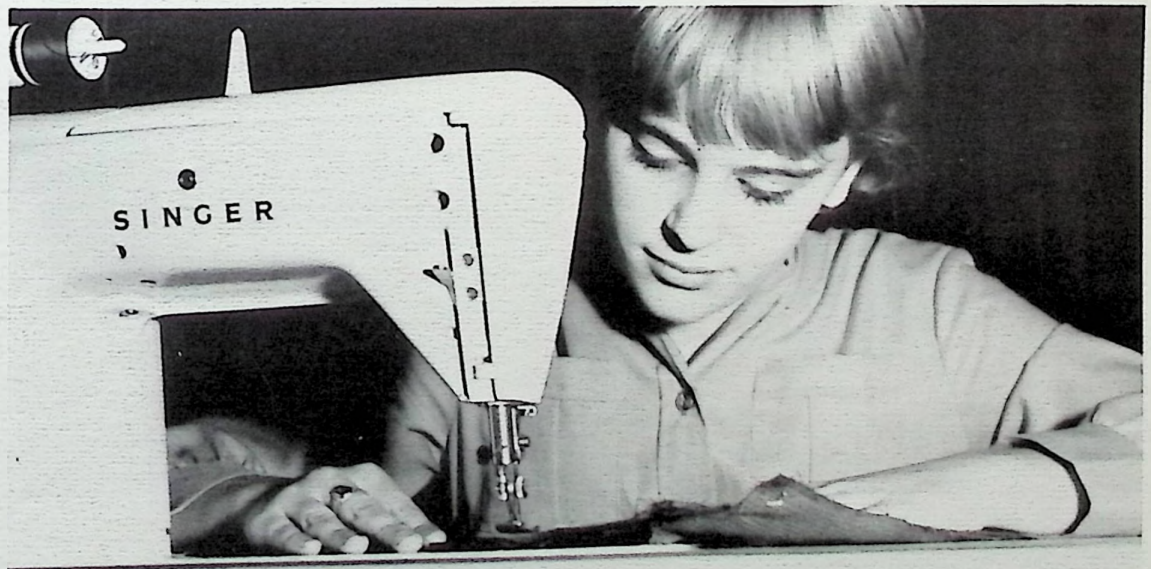

Valuable Household Skills Obtained in Home Economics

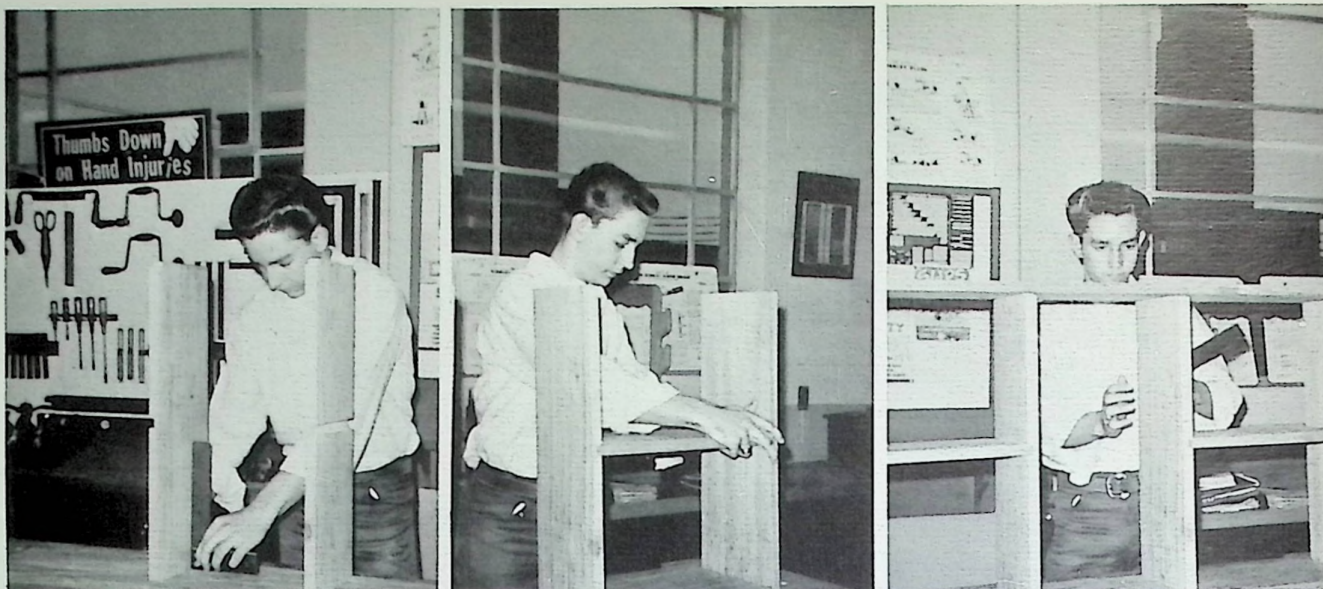

Paulett Pennywitt cuts out material for her new dress.

Mrs. Pamela Cormany teaches two freshman and two senior home economics classes. She also instructs two classes of home and family, a recent addition to the curriculum. This new course is designed to teach boys and girls to become responsible members of the family.

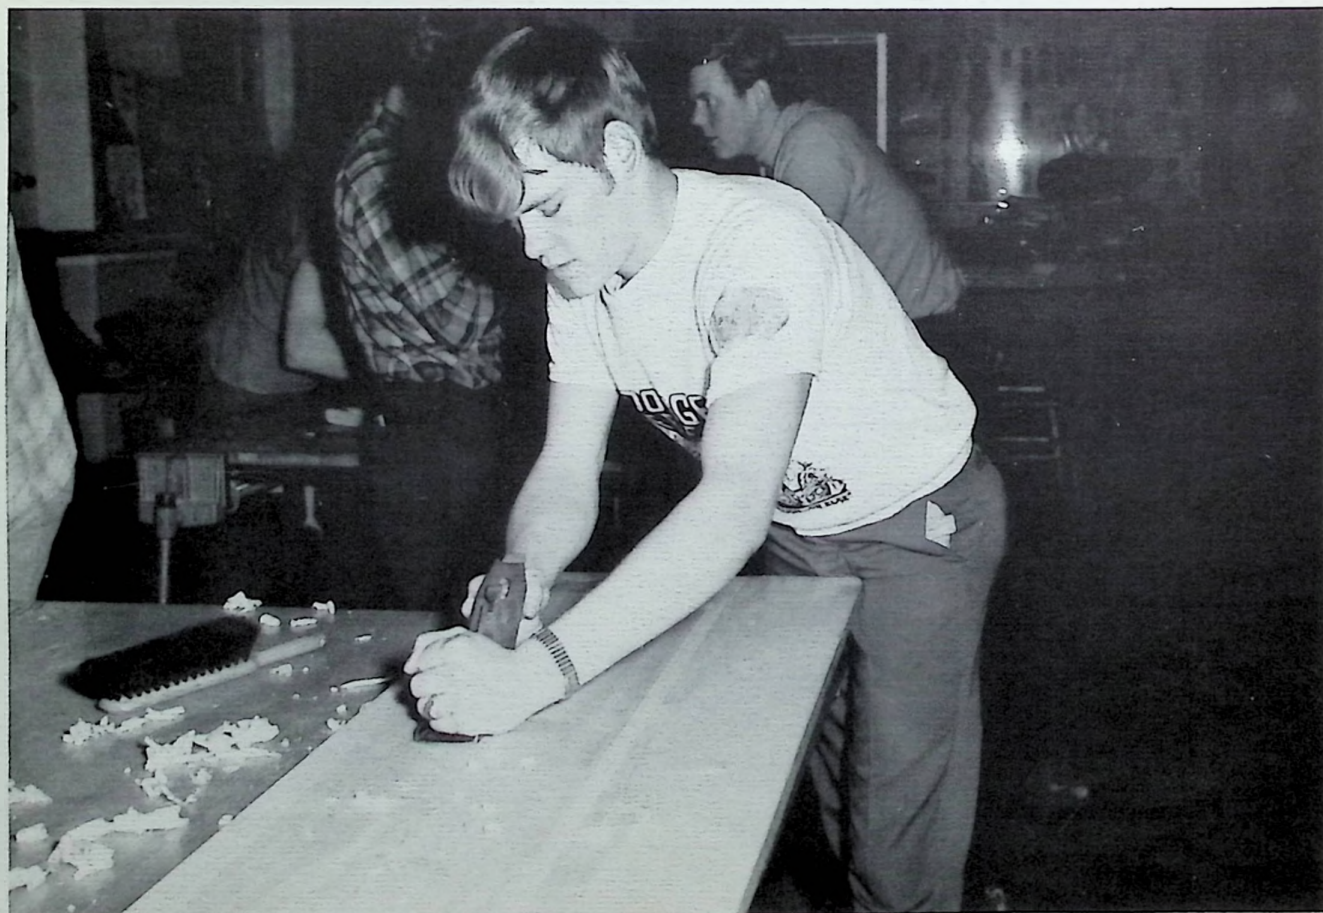

Jeanie Riggs learns to sew straight seams and to put in a zipper for her new dress. She learns that doing a job well gives satisfaction.

The above pictures show Danny Wilson in the middle of his Ind. Arts project.

Gain Important Skills

Beginning industrial art students study blueprints and blueprint drawing. Many hours are spent drawing one blueprint. These students also study types of materials that are available on the market today.

Advanced students choose a project which they work on throughout the year. From these projects Mr. Henry selects three to enter the county fair each year. Northwest usually captures a place in the top three. The boys pictured here hope to keep the record going.

In History Class Debates:

Colonial Uprising Halted by England; South's Succession Justified

History and government classes are always a favorite among the students at Northwest. This can be attributed to the instructors who work so diligently to better their teaching methods and improve their classroom relations with their students. In order to do this, these teachers have instituted many new activities in their classes.

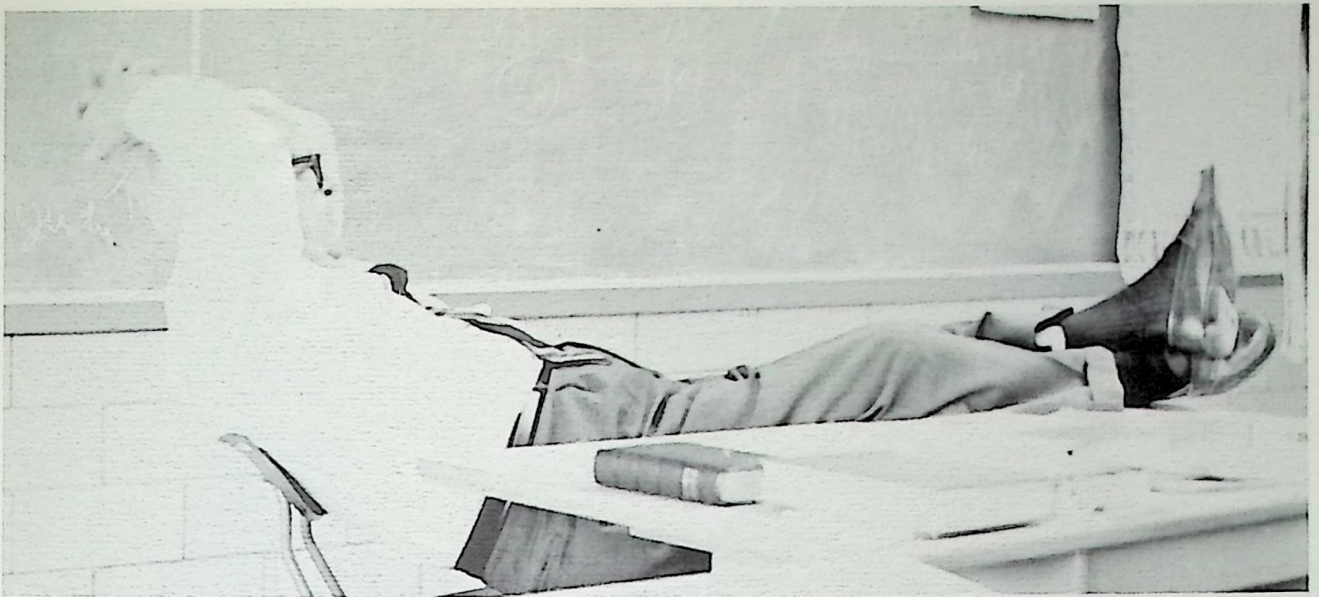

Mr. Diehlmann's world history classes and Mr. Hobbs' classes have become well acquainted with their subject through the use of audio-visual aids. A weekly filmstrip on current events also kept them in touch with present happenings.

American history students found themselves participants in history when they undertook the job of defending their views concerning major historical events in inter-class debates. Mrs. Brown's classes also delved into the study of communism.

Government classes, under Mr. Eulett's guidance, studied the complex framework of the governmental system of the United States. These studies also included lectures on government at the state and local as well as the national level.

Science Classes Stimulate Thought and Demand Concentration

Here at Northwest, every student must take at least one science course during his high school career; therefore, the science department must maintain its high teaching standards. This means that the three teachers who constitute our science staff must constantly strive to make their classes more interesting and informative. They give much of their own time in order to accomplish these objectives.

Five different science classes are offered to our students. Mr. Lawson's general and physical science classes provide the basis for all advanced science subjects. Biology, a favorite among students, is taught by Mr. Schuyler. This class also introduces students to laboratory work. Mr. Orlett instructs chemistry and physics students and helps them become better acquainted with lab. Dedicated and hard-working, these teachers add much to the academic program of our school.

New Math and Geometric Forms Bewilder Students

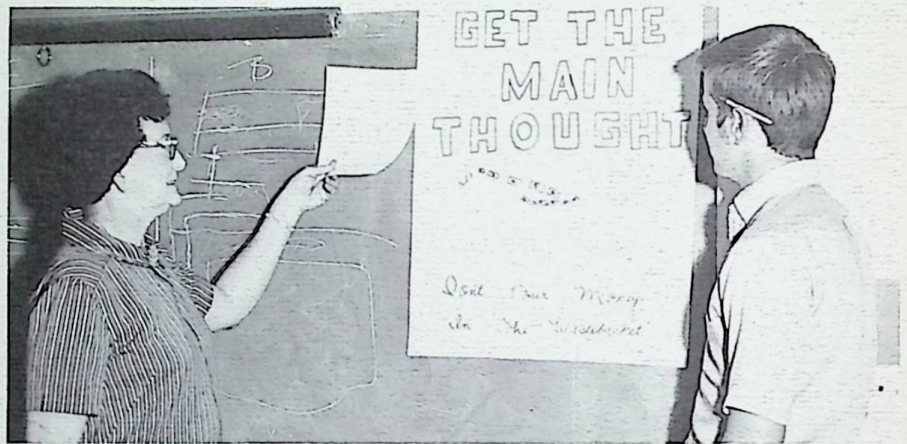

MRS. ELLA WHITT
English, Math

All students at Northwest are enrolled in some type of math course. Whether they study mathematics in its simplest form or contemplate the science of trigonometry, they learn that all math has a practical application.

Their teachers, Mr. Copp, basic math, Mr. Crotty, business math, Mr. Orlett, Algebra II and trigonometry, and Miss Hutchinson, Algebra I and geometry, help them to realize this and attempt to ready their students for future occupations by giving them a sound Mathematic background.

Students Become Adept in Artistic Skills

Mrs. Fuert's art class has studied various fields of art this year. As always, they drew with charcoal and chalk and painted with water colors and oils. They also worked with ceramics and experimented with papier-mâché and plaster of Paris sculpture.

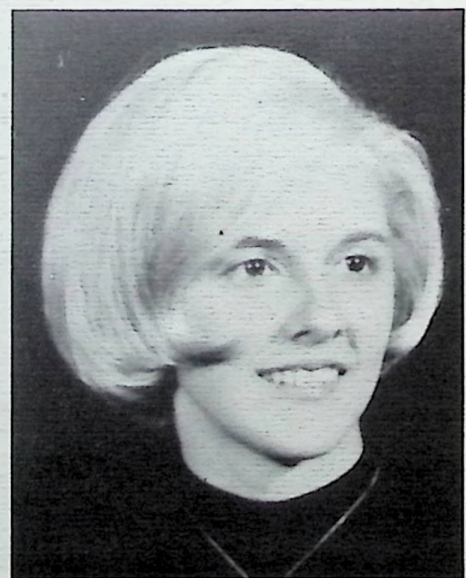

Physical education always begins with exercises. Working out sore muscles is also the first thing many girls must do.

Girls' Physical Education

Freshmen and sophomores participate in physical education and enjoy the break in the regular school routine. Although physical education means exercises every day, the students also learn to play tennis, golf, shuffleboard, table tennis, softball, and basketball.

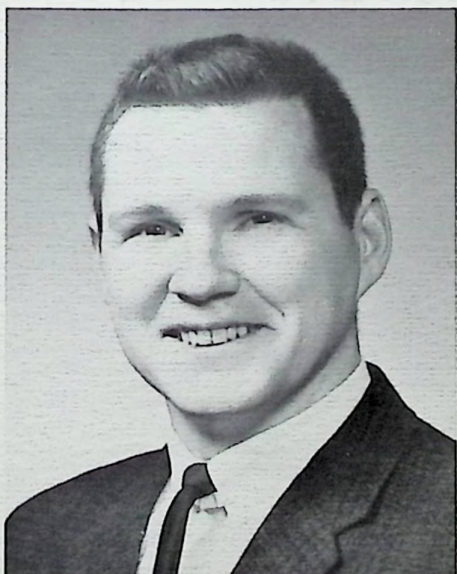

This year's highlight was the visit by Mr. Universe. According to him, a daily fitness program is necessary. He displayed his ability to lift several pounds with little effort. His intensive fitness program led him to the Mr. Universe contest and to the title.

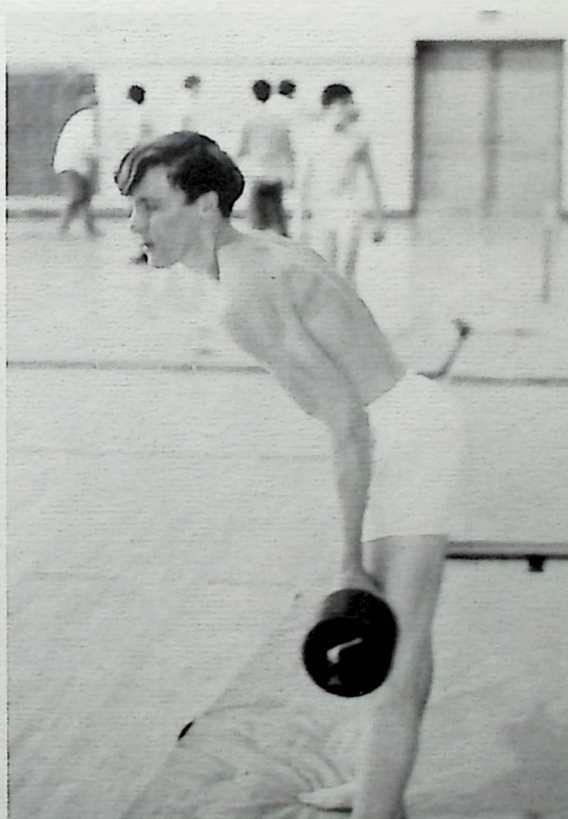

All students eagerly await their turn on the trampoline.

Senior Prom Held on the Chaperon

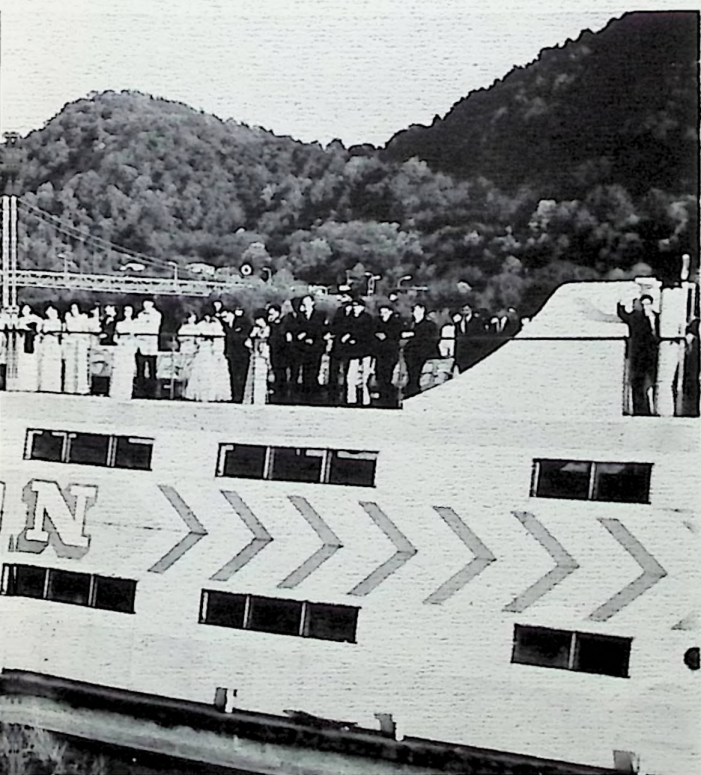

Seniors uphold tradition and decide to hold their prom on the Chaperon. The night was warm and balmy. There was excitement and nostalgia in the air. It was a night for dancing, dining, and bowling followed by breakfast. Almost everyone stayed up all night because there are only a few days of school left and prom night seems to be the climax of the senior year. Yet all realize this is the last time for the class to be together and each wonders where we will be next year at this time.

Probably the biggest question a senior must answer is, "What are you going to do when you graduate?" Some of us have decided to go to the Branch, some to Ohio State, some to business school, some to nurses training, some to the service, some to join the forces looking for a job. What about the remainder of us? Well, many of us just don't know. What are we going to do?

Bookkeeping requires a great amount of work as Brenda Risner discovers.

Monte Kremin, photographer, uses the new KOWA then develops the pictures himself.

Pam Emmett crops one of many pictures she used in the academic section.

Helena Peebles (typist), Debbie Temple, and Dawn Platzer work on the ads sections which they completed.

Sadie Hawkins Dance and Colorday

The '69 yearbook's history began in August of '68 when the staff started soliciting advertisements, which make up approximately one half of the $2400 needed to publish the annual. After the school year begins, the first job is to schedule the photographer at appropriate dates in order to obtain pictures of all the important events occurring throughout the year. With the arrival and distribution of the previous year's annual, the staff can begin taking orders for the '69 book.

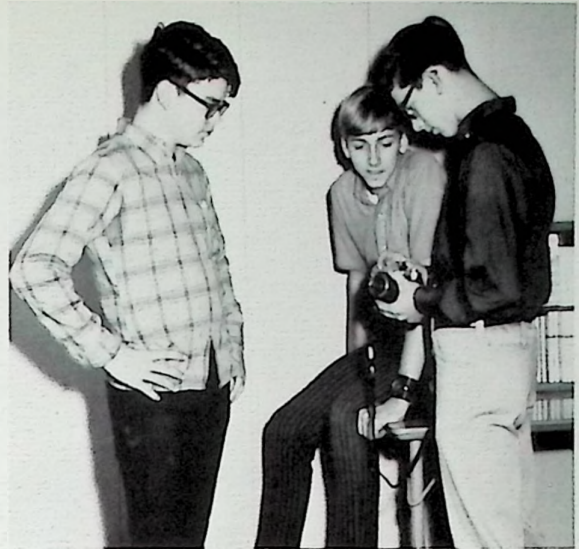

Through weeks of drawing layouts, cropping pictures, and writing copy, the team rushes to meet the company's deadline. Usually this involves working weeks after the school year has ended.

In spite of all the work involved the staff finds time to participate in sponsoring extra school activities such as the Sadie Hawkins Dance in which the students dressed in original hillbilly tradition and the annual Colorday event characterized by wearing the traditional school colors of red, white, and blue. The staff awarded gifts for the best costumes in each of these events.

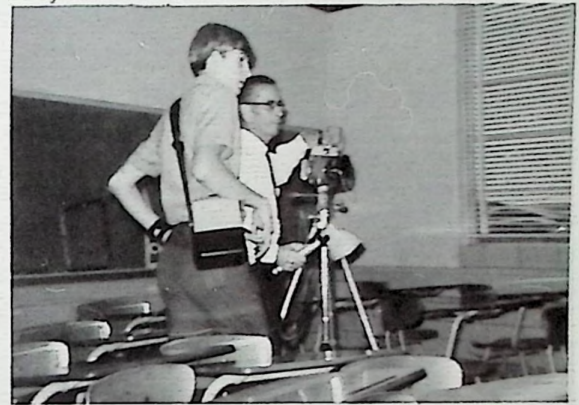

Rita Detwiller, layout editor, and Martha Coder type final pages.

Mike Browning, business editor, checks advertising receipts with Russ Harr.

Marty assists Mr. Fox of Marting's. Mr. Fox works with our staff several times a year.

Sponsored by Lakota Staff

S. Thatcher, P. Pennywitt, P. Shoemaker, and P. Strickland investigate a Sadie Hawkins Day Dance Decoration.

Color Day winner, Lou Ann Hansen, wears her winning costume. Julie Burns and Robbie Phipps won second place.

As you turn the last page of this book you bring to a close a year of your life.

I would like to thank all those who made it possible to recreate that year through the '69 edition of the LAKOTA.

My sincere thanks go out to Mrs. Etta Ross, our yearbook advisor, without whose help this book would never have been published.

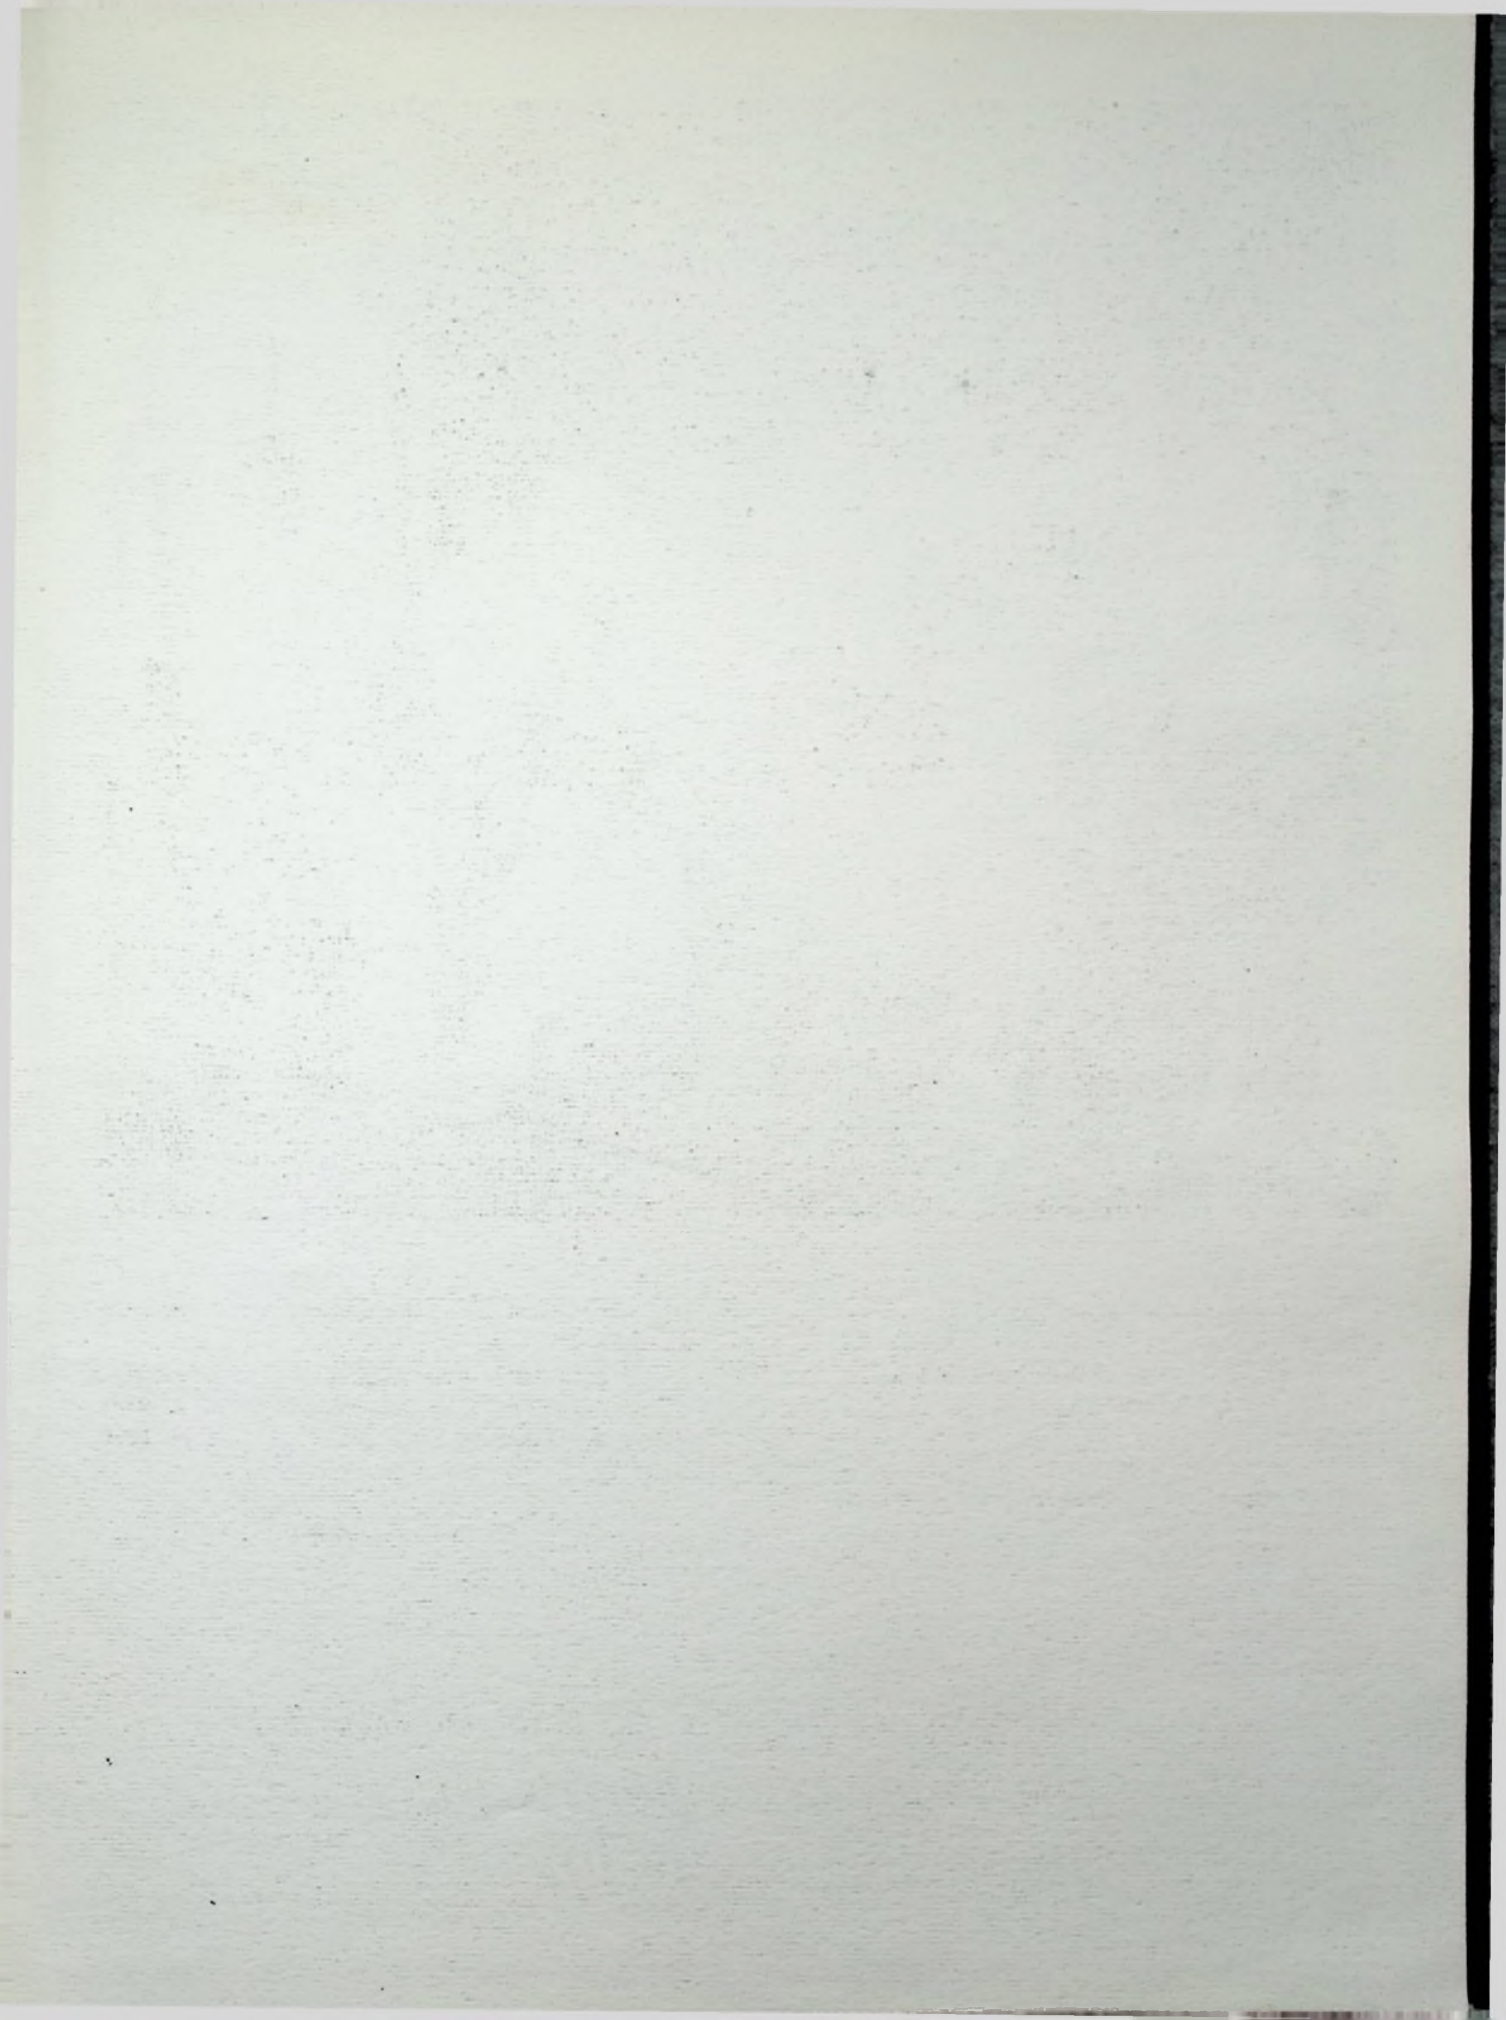

I also want to thank all the staff members whose co-operation and teamwork was essential in creating this book.

My final thanks are to Mr. Fox of Marting's Studio, Barbara Cape of Taylor Publishing Co. and all other persons associated with the production of your 1969 LAKOTA.
