Foreword

"Grant to fathers prosperity and sanctity of the family, to mothers success in their mission of rearing their children."

These Our Holy Father's words, taken from the Holy Year Prayer, have recalled to the Memories staff the importance of the family as a unit in community, parish and home life. Therefore it is hoped that Centralites of today and yesterday, turning the pages of this edition of Memories, will relive the happiness of their high school days and realize anew that faith is the bond from which unity springs, at home, at school — everywhere.

It is the wish of the staff that this yearbook serve not only as a record of the year's memories but also as a reminder that only by a constant practice of real Christian family living can Catholic youth hope for a strongly preserved personal faith.

Father Klinec officiates at the Enthronement of the Sacred Heart in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Dadosky.

Mr. Dadosky is an alumnus of the former St. John's Business College in Holy Redeemer Parish, Portsmouth, while Mrs. Dadosky and five of their eight children are graduates of St. Mary High School.

Dedication

Mindful of the ever-present need, especially in a world today, of family unity and sanctity in the home, we, the staff of "Memories," dedicate our 1951 yearbook to the Holy Family, always the model and ideal. May Jesus, Mary, and Joseph guide and protect us as the spiritual children of that holy union.

The Most REVEREND MICHAEL J. READY
Bishop of Columbus

The Right Reverend MONSIGNOR TIBURTIUS A. GOEBEL.

Ever since we can remember, Monsignor Goebel has been our inspiration to and our example of a holy life. Under his careful direction we were taught religion every week for eight years.

During the past four years Monsignor Goebel has taken a less active part in our school life. But we are not unaware that this has also meant an increase in his prayers for us and for the success of every project in the parish.

We Present Our Superintendent . . .

The cares of parish life have not weighed so heavily upon Monsignor Casey and Father Klinec as to drown the enthusiasm of their keen interest, which stimulates school affairs, and their quiet humor enlivening every occasion. Their greatest joy is in administering the Sacraments to the faithful of their parishes. Centralites take just pride in the priestly bearing of their spiritual guides.

Though the zeal of the two pastors, the Enthronement of the Sacred Heart in the home and the pilgrimage of the Our Lady of Fatima statue into family circles have served to encourage Christian family living and have cemented the bond between parish and home.

. . . And Now
Our Schools.

We Centralites are justly proud of our schools, not so much because of their structural design or architectural beauty, but because of the many lessons in the arts and sciences acquired there. Even more important, however, is that they have given us the impetus to a flying start on life's highway. Trying to live in the present so as to be a credit to the Catholic families we represent, we anticipate that future time when we shall establish Christian homes of our own.

May the fond memories of the wonderful times we have had in the halls and corridors of these, our second homes, be a lingering tribute to them.

Books in hand, Betty Jo, Philip, Stephen, Robert, and Becky Delabar set out for school, as their mother and father and Timmy beam good-bye.

The second candle beneath the Advent wreath is lighted by Vincent Cattee as fellow-freshmen recite the prayers of the Church.

Eagerness and zest, the usual attributes of freshmen, characterize St. Mary's Class of 1954. Good sports in the business of being new comers in high school, the class combined forces splendidly in writing and presenting the Christmas play for the December Parent-Teachers' meeting. Real scholarship within the ranks will be a constant incentive to class competitions and excellence in studies throughout their years in high school.

Pope Pius XI

The freshman class of Holy Redeemer is a well-liked and dignified group, neither noisy, troublesome nor inert. Much can be told of them for they have shown us just what they are capable of. They are crowding the honor roll, they have enthusiastic leaders and have demonstrated what well-organized class activity can produce. Let's hope they don't change.

Freshmen help one another to unlock the treasures of booklore.

With a sigh of relief the sophomores trudge homeward after school.

Ranging from the demure to the bombastic, the sophomores of St. Mary's displayed talent and class cooperation when they began the year right by planning the freshman-sophomore mixer in September. The attractiveness of their homeroom throughout the seasons gives promise of an up-and-coming group with their share of initiative and artistic ability. Although said initiative has been known to go "off the beam" at times, the sophomores still boast the largest percentage of honor roll members in the school.

The magic word "home"! How it quickens the heartbeat wherever we may be. Rev. John J. Walde

The Holy Redeemer sophomore class is small in number. They are known for their ability to carry out their ideas in a quiet manner. This characteristic of quietness stands out in a school where high-pitched activity resounds from first bell to last. The sophomores, as a class, are beginning to pull together and show promise that they will bring forth many latent talents.

Father Benedetti leads the sophomores in a prayer to the Holy Ghost for the necessary enlightenment.

Christmas in the missions of the South was merry because of the gifts made by loyal juniors under the direction of Sister M. Mathia.

All too ready to take over leadership in school activities as next year's seniors, the juniors of St. Mary's willingly show their desire by enthusiastic greetings and encouraging smiles. The boys, limited in number, are not to be outdone in anything, even by the unusual feminine vigor in the class. The last edition of the MARIAN was put out by this energetic group and hailed as a great success. May their aspirations and diligence carry them to greater leadership and new achievements!

The family is very specifically an interest of the Church. President Truman

The junior class of Holy Redeemer has paved its own way through high school and has made a very original name for itself. They have always been known for their aggressiveness, originality, hubbub, and uproar. They are greatest in number of all the classes and are lacking in no abilities nor talents. As a group they are likable; it is hard to subdue their cheeriness.

Round Table Groups

Stress Mission Study

The C.S.M.C. Round Tables are formed by a group from each class, who are interested in missionary work at home and abroad. Meetings are held at a designated time each week, and the groups discuss mission articles taken from the official C.S.M.C. magazine, The Shield. In order to receive credit toward the Paladin Award each group must have twelve meetings per year. A chief conducts the meetings, and a scribe keeps a record of attendance and of reports on the topics chosen. Some of the mission lands discussed this year included Haiti, China, Korea, India, and Japan.

Beginning their first year at the Round Table the sophomores, under the guidance of the C.S.M.C. moderator, Sister Mathia, have enthusiastically taken part in mission study.

For the majority of the juniors this is the second year of Round Table work. They, too, follow the works of missionaries in the United States and in foreign lands.

Closing their last year of Round Table, the seniors, now completing three years of mission study, feel not only that they have become acquainted with missionary work from one end of the world to the other, but that they have benefited by public discussion and the expression of personal viewpoints. In view of these advantages they hope to be able in the future to live up to the Crusader's ideals of prayer, study and sacrifice.

When the Memories' Staff Gets Together the Wheels of Production Grind at Top Speed

An annual is simple to put together, the staff of '51 found out. All you have to do is: take a few thousand pictures, pose for a hundred of them yourself, then work like mad at write-ups telling the reader who everyone is and explain what they are doing. After this you hunt like Daniel Boone, dig like a gold miner, sketch like Norman Rockwell, haunt the doors of sponsors like Banquo's ghost, rush for the deadline and pray for the success of the final result.

Top: Ideal conditions for working on a yearbook are: plenty of patience, paper, ideas, and a cluttered table. Editor Mary Ann Reinhardt and Associate Editor Helen Emmett evidently work in the correct atmosphere. Clockwise: Editor Mary Pasturzak and Assembly Editor Joanne Virgin approve the work of Artist Patricia Haffner.

Associate Editor Joseph Dold wades through a sea of pictures and passes them on to Mary Clare Binder and Mary Ann Banchy, Feature Editors. Joann Streitenberger sorts snapshots at her post as Photography Editor while William Boots, Feature Editor, searches for the exact word. "I'll take that patron," offers Circulation Manager Betty Born. Business Manager David Lang, Advertiser Ed Hock, and Sports Editor Clarence Allemang weigh values at a cover conference.

What's new at school? The MARIAN staff at St. Mary's keeps fellow students up-to-date by recording the what, when, where, who, why, and how of school activities. Four times a year editors, news writers, typists, and artists join forces to put out an issue that "clicks."

Two formations of the Grand March led by John Duschinski, Helen Emmett, Franklin Dadosky, and Betty Born.

Spring came with its flowers and inspirations. Caught in its whirl of romance came the long-anticipated Junior-Senior Banquet and Prom. These events — the final get-together for friends and classmates — form some of the most precious of memory's treasures.

While proud parents looked on, their sons and daughters swirled to music of "The Moderns" at the Holy Redeemer-Saint Mary Prom.

An Oriental theme highlighted the Junior-Senior Banquet in the Holy Redeemer auditorium.

The camera caught Clarence Allemang, Shirle Williams, Edward Hock, and Ruth Scherer straight out their programs between dances.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hock and their family pause on the steps of St. Monica's Church in New Boston after assisting at Sunday Mass.

The Family goes to church

"God blesses the home where parents and children offer Mass together, occupy the family pew, kneel together at the altar rail to receive Holy Communion, and pray with and for each other every day." The Christian Citizen—His Challenge

If one likes to be worshipped with envy and meek admiration (and what boy doesn't?) then the altar boy has more than his wish. For little girls follow him breathlessly with wide blue eyes as he minces and marches and bows during High Mass.

His schoolfellows envy him too: for ringing those teasing snatches of music on the chimes, and for leading processions with candles and cross; but especially for swinging the golden censer, and knowing the guarded mystery of incense, that magical trick of producing a great cloud of sweet-smelling smoke with seemingly nothing but a pass of the hand.

So important is this little surpliced jumping jack, that Canon Law forbids the priest to start the Mass without him. The Mass can never be a private devotion that priests can say alone, but always and ever it is a public act

Assisting the priests in the daily sacrifice of the Mass, St. Mary servers willingly perform their sacred duties with promptness and dependability. Early Masses, evening devotions, May Crowning and other religious exercises may sometimes cost a server those few last winks in the early morn or a change in plans, but such a sacrifice for Our Lord is none too great.

There is no higher honor nor greater glory than assisting the celebrant at the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass. These Holy Redeemer boys have served faithfully, some of them for eight years. Neither rain nor snow, not even the memorable Thanksgiving blizzard has hindered them from their offices at evening devotions, holy hours, and all daily and Sunday Masses.

of solemn worship offered in unison by the universal Church. That is why it does not matter if the pews be dark and empty, as they often are on weekdays at the early Masses . . . it does not matter so long as the acolyte is kneeling at the altar step. He is the substitute and symbol of the towering universal Catholic Church. . . . The entire Mystical Christ is there in unsuspected miniature.

And when the church is crowded on a busy Sunday morning, it is still the altar boy who answers for the silent congregation in the creaking pews. It is he who brings up gifts in the name of the people. And when the priest turns round to beg them pray that his sacrifice and theirs be acceptable to Heaven, who knows they may be lost in long novenas, and pay the priest no heed at all. But the altar boy pipes up a prayer in their common stead. He answers the Suscipiat.

Mary tells us that it is the supreme task every mother to rear her child so that Christ will shine forth in his soul.

Msgr. Joseph R. Casey

At the annual May Crowning, the students of Holy Redeemer School proceeded up the center aisle flanked by the servers bearing blue vigil lights. The junior girls received the floral offerings of the girls, and boys and, last of all, of the seniors, clad in cap and gown. The flowers were laid at the feet of the statue of Our Lady symbolizing the act of consecration by which the Seniors dedicated themselves to her service and love. After the actual crowning by a senior, there is a sermon and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

True followers of Mary find their joy more in the home than out of it.

—Father Julius G. Klinec

May Crowning

The end of May came and with it May Crowning. The entire student body of St. Mary's provided the singing of the ever devotional hymns, each boy and girl presenting flowers at the shrine. When the statue had been crowned by a privileged senior, the graduating class, dressed in cap and gown and assembled in the sanctuary, recited an Act of Consecration and sang "Wilt Thou Look Upon Us, Mother?" with hopeful love for Our Lady. Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament in honor of Our Blessed Mother concluded the traditional services.

The Holy Redeemer Girls' Choir has been noted throughout the year for the excellent presentation of its chant and polyphony and also for the faithfulness of the members in being present for the various services. It's not hard to sing gloriously at Midnight Mass or for the Holy Week services, but it is another story to be present day after day at seven o'clock to sing the daily High Masses. Yet the girls have been outstanding in their loyalty.

High School Girls' Choirs

The St. Mary's Girls' Choir chose as officers this year one member of each of the four high school classes: Shirley Williams, a senior, president; Janet Frantz, a junior, vice-president; Sandra July and Priscilla Bickel, sophomore and freshman secretary and treasurer, respectively. Vigorous practice at semi-weekly rehearsals has insured the necessary polished performance that parishioners have learned to expect at Sunday Masses. Members have also taken turns singing in groups of four at seven o'clock High Masses on weekdays. Under the name of the Mari-Singers the girls also sang as a Glee Club group, making a fine appearance at the spring music recital.

The Holy Redeemer Pilgrim Virgin

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Joseph R. Casey brought the small hand-carved statue of Our Lady of Fatima from Portugal, where he obtained it during his pilgrimage to Rome. Now the Pilgrim Virgin is making a sacred journey through the parish, stopping a night and a day in each home. On the First Saturday, the statue returns to the Church for the Fatima Devotions. Each family looks forward to the day when the image of Our Blessed Mother will come to their home, and long after she has left, they relive the precious hours in pictures and memories. Already the Pilgrim Virgin has become a beloved tradition in Holy Redeemer Parish.

The Guardians of the Pilgrim Virgin Statue are volunteers who take the statue from home to home and recite the rosary and prayers in the home they take the statue from and again in the home they take the statue to. Each evening, two of these faithful girls quietly go about their duties and do a highly meritorious act which involves sacrifice and fidelity. Pictured at left are: From row: M. Wasil, J. Bauer, A. Coyle, B. Burke, R. Oberling. Second row: R. Middlecamp, M. Burk, C. Simpson, A. Bendinelli, M. Banchy, S. Davis. Third row: L. Wasil, M. Bendinelli, P. Tose, M. Simpson, M. Students In

On October 15 St. Mary parishioners motored through the many-colored hills about Portsmouth to visit four local churches in a group Holy Year Pilgrimage.

Once a month on Holy Name Sunday, the Holy Redeemer High School Boys' Choir sing hymns at the 9 o'clock Mass.

Sodality officers Rosalie Hahn, Patricia Haffner, Mary Pasturzak, and Shirley Williams pose before a beloved statue of Our Lady on first floor at St. Mary's.

"What shall I read during retreat?" Howard Lindner, John Pasturzak, and Donald Brown are wondering.

From January 29 to February 2, the Reverend Gerald F. Furlong, C.M., conducted a retreat for the students of Holy Redeemer and St. Mary High Schools.

As all members of the family form a unit, so in turn must all the families of the parish unite to form another, though larger, image of the mystical body, with the pastor as the head.—Altar and Home.

Parish Life

Cemetery Sunday on October 29 brought the traditional prayers for the dead at the graves of departed friends and relatives of St. Mary families.

Clarence Allemang, Joseph Dodd, and Franklin Dadosky, the senior servers at St. Mary, will continue their privileged place in the sanctuary during vacation.

After seven years of faithful service the five senior servers at Holy Redeemer reluctantly relinquish the censer, incense boat, candles, and Missal. Left to right: Gerald Cassidy, William Boots, David Eck, Kenneth Hartlage, Gregory McCormack.

Forty Hours at Holy Redeemer were held on Nov. 11-12-13. The Litany of the Saints was again chanted by the servers. The cantors are at the extreme left: Gerald Cassidy, Daniel Sand, Thomas Gavin, Kenneth Hartlage, Gregory McCormack.

Christmas tree gathering and crib making went on as usual this year, but even though it was the Winter of the Big Snow, our Christmas was green.

Mr. and Mrs. George Banchy have been coming to school plays for years and still have a few more years to go before the youngest of their twelve children has graduated. Here, shown with their parents, are William, Mark and Mary Ann.

In a musical tale that begins with a rose festival and ends with preparations for "a joyful combination of riches and romance," one might expect that events would follow one another at a smooth, harmonious tempo. And surely they would have, had it not been for the wiles of Count Sergius von Popova, leader of a plot against the King and Queen of Eurolania and their royal family. Of course it took two clever Americans to turn the tables, thus capsizing his evil plans and winning for themselves two lovely brides.

Both schools sent delegations to the meeting of the Ohio High School Speech League in Columbus, October 14. Upper left: The St. Mary representatives were Edward Hock, Catherine Foster, Ruth Scherer, Erna Hansman and Janet Frantz. Above: Holy Redeemer's dramatic club sent Mary Ann Bendinelli, Barbara Utley, William Boots, Frances Tannian, Lawrence Hartlage, Thomas Gavin, Jean Phillips, Linda Brushhart and Lois Wasil. One of the outstanding events of the Conference was a one-act play presented arena style. One of the results of the meeting was that the Holy Redeemer Masquers presented a workshop arena one-act play "Rehearsal," directed by Frances Tannian. Robert Albrecht (left) is the escaped convict who hides in an abandoned barn where Carol Simpson recites Shakespeare, as the audience sits in a circle about the "stage."

The traditional Freshman Christmas entertainment at St. Mary's this year was an original play by Johanna Orlett, "A Gift for the Little King." The leading role of Micok, a shepherd boy, was taken by Vincent Carree, shown here with his faithful dog, Beri.

Lower left: Even the magic cat says a prayer before the opening curtain of "Cinderella." Below: The "gentle" queen makes up under close scrutiny.

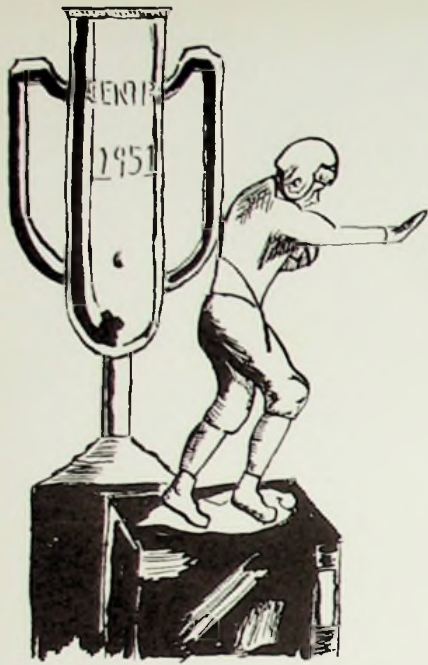

Whenever Mr. and Mrs. Bernard K. Hartlage and Jerry and Gerry go to the basketball game, they keep their eyes on player No. 22, who just now seems to be everywhere.

The Christian Citizen — His Challenge

Head Coach Ora F. Tussey, graduate of Eastern State Teachers College, has been director of athletics at Central since January, 1949. Besides his activities as coach and teacher, Mr. Tussey has taken great interest in the morale of the whole high school and has implanted his friendliness and understanding in the heart of every student in Central High.

It was a sad day when Uncle Sam called him from Central blue back to Navy blue for the second semester.

Sommer, C. Allemang, R. Gill, D. Sand, K. Hartlage, E. Lawson, G. Pierron, J. Kleinman, J. Middlecamp, C. Malone.

Central 0 — Raceland 32

The first football game of the 1950 season ended with a defeat for the sparse Central Catholic squad. Raceland, a strong Kentucky team, literally ran over the Titans and out-classed them in every department.

Central 12 — Washington 40

This contest showed great improvement for the Central squad and was much closer than the score indicated. Standouts were K. Hartlage and France on offense, while T. Vamvas and Dadosky shone on defense.

Central 13 — Hillsboro 27

The Titans, plagued by injuries, came out on the short end. Touchdowns were scored by Gill on a pass from K. Hartlage, and by Hartlage himself from 16 yards.

Central 0 — Chesapeake 27

Trailing 7-0 at the half, the Titan team rebounded and suffered another defeat. Playing without the services of Porginski, who had had his ankle broken in the previous game, Central was hampered in the offensive.

Central 6 — Waverly 32

Central traveled to Waverly and met a strong Tiger team who outplayed the Titans. Frank Perri scored the lone touchdown, which resulted from a 15-yard sprint.

Central 13 — McKell 6

Classed as "underdog," Central journeyed to McKell into the hills of Kentucky and emerged victorious for the first time. Everyone played well for the greater glory of the team. Frank Perri scored both of Central's touchdowns and K. Hartlage drop-kicked the extra point.

Central 20 — East 25

Fresh after their first win, the Titans played brilliantly in every department with the exception of one—passing defense. Frank Perri, the team's offensive workhorse, scored two touchdowns, while Quarterback Kenny Hartlage made the other. Standouts on defense were Jim Vamvas and Capt. Ed Lawson.

Central 0 — Lancaster B.I.S. 55

Playing on a wet, sloppy field at Municipal Stadium, the Titans came up against the strongest team of the season. Blocking and offensive playing were the game-winning tactics to which the Lancaster team owed its victory.

Central 7 — Glenwood 27

Central again lacked in pass-defense, and thus lost by a large score. Jim Vamvas, playing the whole game, scored the lone touchdown on a 55-yard sprint. Frank Perri scored the extra point.

Central 6 — South Point 33

Starting off with a bang, the Pointers from Lawrence County scored 27 points in the first quarter and coasted the rest of the game. K. Hartlage scored the only touchdown resulting from an 80-yard run. Jim Vamvas again played good defensive ball for the Titans.

Every year toward the end of the football season, at the homecoming game, queens chosen by the student body reign over the festivities between the halves. This year on November 18, after the Central-New Boston game, players and fans danced to the music of Bob Clemens' Orchestra in Holy Redeemer Auditorium. Pictured left, the queens and their attendants hold the gold "mums" presented to them by the co-captains and senior players: Holy Redeemer attendants Joann Streitenberger and Mary Ann Reinhardt and Queen Helen Emmett; St. Mary Queen Genevieve Montavon and attendants Patricia Haffner and Mary Clare Binder.

Football Highlights

At the Central Catholic Athletic Banquet, held on January 18 in the Holy Redeemer Auditorium, the team was honored by the Athletic Association. Guest speaker of the evening was Ed Kluska (left), head football coach at Xavier University, Cincinnati, who gave some highlights of his team's accomplishments. Letters and pins were awarded to players, managers and cheerleaders, and announcement was made of the co-captains for next year, Frank Perri and Paul V. Orlett.

These peppy misses are a constant credit to our school. They are always on the go, on the job, and ever-ready to arrange new cheers or formations. Second only to the team in rank at the games, much of the attraction centers on them, with their colorful outfits and graceful antics.

The Titan team throughout a full and strenuous season showed perseverance and piled up an enormous number of points. Although victories were few and far between, Central fans are all convinced they had a wonderful team this year.
