Historical Sketch.

It was a magnificent plan of empire conceived by Colbert, the great minister of Louis XIV., when, after Canada had been colonized by France; after the river St. Lawrence, with its grand expansion of inland seas, had been coasted by the missionary effort of Marquette and others; after the Lower Mississippi had been discovered by De Soto, and after its entire length had been explored by the bold enterprise of La Salle, he undertook, by all the means which his master could be induced to place at his disposal, to surround the vast territory bordered by these immense navigable waters, with a cordon of missionary and military posts, looking forward, with the prophetic eye of true genius, to the time when the possessions, settlements, and control of these extensive and fertile regions, would render his beloved France one among the greatest of nations, and his august master eminently worthy of the appellation of "Grand Monarque," which was even then accorded to him.

Colbert, no doubt, hoped that while England held in colonial subjection the territory washed by the Atlantic, and limited on the west by the Allegheny range, he could secure for France that more fertile and extensive region reaching north and west from the same ridge to the lakes and the Mississippi, or even to an unknown extent beyond.

But the colonies and mother country claimed title to an indefinite expansion westward, and in the early part of the eighteenth century took measures to secure their claims, by outposts and pioneer settlements, further and further into the wild and forest regions. France, as far as she could, pursued the same course by pushing her outposts further and further eastward. Thus the two nations, rivals for centuries, with the English Channel only dividing them, still maintained their rivalry, though changing its theatre of action to the heart of the Western continent.

In carrying out this rivalry, the French saw the importance of controlling the Ohio river and its main tributaries. Hence they established posts on the Ohio and Wabash. On the latter was the important post of Vincennes. On the main stream, appropriately called "La Belle riviere," they established several posts, and about the year 1750, built Fort Duquesne at its head, now the city of Pittsburgh. It was at a point about nine miles from this fort, when in the conflict for empire between the two nations, Braddock, with an English and provincial force, was defeated by the French and Indians, in 1755.

Among the posts on the Ohio was an incipient one at the mouth of the Scioto, on the western side, begun, as it is believed, prior to the building of Fort Duquesne. Among the evidences of the occupation of this point, is the fact that the American settlers, after the Revolutionary War, found a large area destitute of forest trees, the old stumps decayed, and an occasional fruit tree in their place. Ornaments and domestic utensils were also found, evidently belonging to a civilized race. And further, the writer of this sketch has in his possession a silver coronation medal of Louis XV., about the size of an old French crown, dated 1722, the year he ascended the throne, and having upon it a representation of the ceremony. This was found in Alexandria, and had doubtless been worn upon the person as an ornament, for several fragments of silver chain were found with it, and upon its edge is a loop through which the chain was passed, and which is worn through, thereby, no doubt, occasioning its loss—one much regretted, we may suppose, by its owner.

On this piece of bottom land, being part of survey 508 in the military district, patented to Alexander Parker, by patent bearing date February 15, 1798, and signed by John Adams, President, was laid out the town of Alexandria. John Belli, of French descent, who was much of a gentleman, with the dress and manners of polite society east of the mountains, was the agent of Parker. It was thought to be a fine commercial point, being at the mouth of one of the most fertile valleys in State, and no more advantageous mode being known at that time for bringing out the produce of the valley and making returns in merchandise, than that of navigating the large streams that drained it, by keel and flat boats. This part of the State was then included in Adams county, the county of Scioto not being established until May, 1803. The plat of the town bears upon its margin a notice by Mr. Belli that "the sale in Alexandria will commence at 12 o'clock, at the corner of Thomas street, on the river, on lot No. 19," dated Jue 4, 1790. A number of lots were doubtless sold on that day, although the earliest deeds are dated 1802-3, the purchasers paying a part down and receiving title bonds to secure the purchase until the final payment. Among the names that appear on the earliest deeds as purchasers, are those of Wm. Russell, Philip Dyer, David Gharkey, John Belli, Christian Bottleman, Thomas Waller, Thomas Collins, Conrad Thorne, Philip Moore and Stephen Smith. Thomas Collins, afterwards associate Judge, was a boatman, and established a sort of a warehouse and store on the bank of the river. David Gharkey was a German, a cabinet maker by trade, of good education, subsequently auditor of Scioto county, and a man of considerable influence in that early day. Thomas Waller was a physician, native of Virginia, and came to Alexandria in 1801 from Pennsylvania, with his young wife and infant daughter. They came on horseback, one of the two only available means at that time (the other being by river from Pittsburgh) bringing their child on a pillow held by turns before them. While a resident of Alexandria Dr. Waller served one session in the Legislature. He had an extensive practice in his profession and subsequently became a leading citizen of Portsmouth.

Alexandria flourished for a few years, but the floods of the Ohio, then little understood, submerged the place on several occasions, the highest portions of the town being only about fifty feet above low water, and other portions less, while the ordinary floods were over fifty feet and the extraordinary ones over sixty feet above low water. This subjected the inhabitants to great difficulty and danger, and led them to consider the propriety of changing their location.

About this time Mr. Henry Massie, a brother of Nathaniel, who laid out the town of Chillicothe, purchased several sections of land on the east side of the Scioto, and laid out the town of Portsmouth. At the lower end of the town plat the Scioto approached within sixteen or twenty rods of the Ohio, and then by a broad sweep receded and entered the Ohio a mile below at Alexandria, thus forming a narrow isthmus and a wide peninsula of comparatively low and heavy timbered land.

The plat of Portsmouth begins at the isthmus just named and extends eastward and northward, the Scioto passing off north, leaving an extended area of high grounds, portions of which are above the highest known floods, and most of it above all ordinary floods. The earliest plat was made in 1802 or 1803, but the modified and permanent plat was recorded in 1805, from which time the settlement fairly began. From 1806 to 1810, also, the people of Alexandria began to leave that place and remove to Portsmouth, the former place having proved itself unfit for a town. Some, however, lingered for years, being unable or unwilling to leave. By degrees the houses became tenantless, and racked by the floods or torn down for other uses, they disappeared, leaving but one, and that built of stone, standing as the only monument of the French and American settlement of Alexandria.

Portsmouth was first built up at the lower or most western portion of the plat, just east of the isthmus, where the surface rose fifteen to eighteen feet above the level of that and the peninsula. Here was the first tavern, kept by Elijah Glover, and the first store, kept by Gen. Wm. Kendall. At this end of town the courts were first held, and, in fact, the principal business transacted. Dwellings—frames or cabins—were here and there scattered over other parts of the town. Dr. Waller built a hewed log house, afterwards weatherboarded, on Front street, above Court. Col. McDonald, brother-in-law of Gen. Duncan McArthur, of Chillicothe, built the first brick, at the lower corner of Front and Massie streets.

The early settlers of southern Ohio hailed from several of the older States, the majority being from Virginia, Pennsylvania and New Jersey. They came from all the different walks and stations in life. Many were mere adventurers without any fixed purpose, and were all impelled westward by the tide of emigration, then setting strongly in that direction, and allured by the promise which a new country, rich in undeveloped resources, held out to all.

Up to 1810, the country was so little opened and the population generally so sparse, that Portsmouth numbered but three or four hundred inhabitants, and the business for the most part was but an interchange of products and commodities such as is incident to and necessary in all small communities.

From 1810 to 1820, the town steadily though slowly improved as the county and country around became cleared and cultivated. Mr. Wm. Lodwick opened what was then considered an extensive mercantile establishment. Other trading houses were opened, and the commercial advantages of the place began to be developed. A considerable business intercourse sprang up between Portsmouth and the upper portions of the valley, by means of keel and flatboats navigating the Scioto. Much of the produce—corn, pork, flour and whisky—was brought down in flatboats and re-shipped or taken directly down the Ohio and Mississippi, sometimes as far as New Orleans.

During this decade the first Court House was built in the middle of Market street, between Front (then Water) and Second streets. It was a square brick box surmounted by a cupola, and had its counterpart in most of the county towns of the State.

In 1815, the first charter was granted to the town of Portsmouth. In March of that year the first election for common councilmen was held, and on the 15th of March the first council met, at which the following named members were returned: Thomas Waller, Nathan Glover, John Brown, David Gharkey, Samuel B. Burt, Josiah Shackford, William Huston, William Kendall, and Nathan K. Clough. They organized by electing Thomas Waller, president, and Nathan K. Clough, clerk. At the same meeting they elected David Gharkey, treasurer, and Wm. Swords, marshal; they appointed a committee to draft rules and regulations for the government of the body, and adjourned to meet at the house of Henry Sheely, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of the first Monday of May following.

Under this form of municipal government the town received an additional impetus, and public improvement, though on a very limited scale, commenced. Many new names were added belonging to citizens in active life, who had emigrated to or grown up in the town. Among these may be mentioned Samuel M. Tracy and his brother Charles, both lawyers; Ezra Osborne, also a lawyer and for many years common pleas judge; John H. Thornton, John McDowell, Dr. G. S. B. Hempstead, and Wm. Oldfield, together with the families of Kinneys, Lodwicks, Clingmans, Noels, and many others, already in or entering upon mature life.

Portsmouth was early designated as the terminal point, on the Ohio, for the canal connecting the Ohio with Lake Erie, while Cleveland, the other terminus on the Lake, would be the nearest point to Buffalo, the terminal point of the great New York canal. It was therefore thought that the Ohio Canal would be an important part of the channel connecting the tide waters of the Hudson with the Ohio river, and that consequently the western terminus must become a very large and important shipping and receiving port.

In 1823, a preliminary survey was made down the Scioto Valley, on the eastern side, terminating at Portsmouth. In 1825, work was commenced on the northern end of the Ohio Canal, beginning at Cleveland. The work progressed southward for two or three years until the Scioto Valley was reached, when through the influence of Chillicothe, it was determined to cross the Scioto river at Circleville, in order to pass through the former place, which is on the west side. After this false step was taken, it then became a question of much importance whether the canal should continue on the west side to a point opposite Portsmouth, or recross the Scioto at a point below Chillicothe and enter the Ohio on the eastern side. After much deliberation the former course was adopted, which was another serious error. During the winter of 1828-9 the line was located to a point opposite Portsmouth, to reach which a wide, deeply-flown bottom had to be crossed. It was at first determined to enter the Scioto opposite the narrow isthmus before mentioned, build a dam some distance below, and construct a lock in the isthmus, to enter the Ohio, the water in the Scioto at that point being some seven feet higher, in low water, than in the Ohio on the other side. Work was commenced on this plan and a deep cut made in the isthmus for the lock, but before it progressed further it was determined to turn the Scioto itself through the narrow neck of land, making for it a new mouth one mile above the natural one. This plan was opposed by the resident engineer, but he was overruled.

The citizens of Portsmouth were almost unanimously opposed to the west side location, but they hoped for the best and the work went on, and all but the last lock was completed in 1832, in the fall of which year the first boat arrived. In 1833, a very considerable and increasing business was done on the canal notwithstanding the difficulty of crossing the Scioto. Large numbers of emigrants from Europe and the Eastern States came from the city of New York, up the Hudson river, through the New York canal, across Lake Erie, and down the Ohio canal to Portsmouth on their way to homes further west by steamboat. Sugar, cotton, and various products of the South, came up the Mississippi and Ohio to Portsmouth, and were here reshipped by canal for Lake Erie. Merchandise from the East, in large quantities, destined for various points in the interior of the State, came down the river from Pittsburgh, and were shipped on the canal, while canal boats loaded with pork, flour, whisky, corn, and other products came down, and their cargoes were reshipped here on steamboats, or on flatboats, destined for the Lower Mississippi.

Portsmouth now began to realize her expectations; and the decade from 1830 to 1840 may be called one of great prosperity for the place. In the early part of it, or, indeed for two or three years previous, many new business men were added to the previous list, and throughout the town received considerable accessions of business, population, and capital. Several large commission houses were established. New mercantile firms came in and the old ones increased their business. Mechanics of every kind found remunerative employment, a large number of stores and dwellings were erected, and business generally flourished.

From 1840 until the present time the history of Portsmouth presents a career of prosperity and advancement, varied only by the causes which have affected the whole country. From a population of not quite 2,000 in 1840, it has increased to a little short of 15,000 in 1877. The area of the city now includes the whole township of Wayne. Its streets present many fine blocks of business houses, with first-class hotels, combining all the modern conveniences necessary for the traveling public. In the city and suburbs are found many private residences of palatial features, with numerous dwellings of less pretensions, but fitted for most enjoyable homes. The city is well supplied with fine schools, and numerous churches of almost all denominations. It has also the Holly system of water works, with eleven miles of pipe, costing $150,000. It has been well-lighted with gas for twenty years, the works, with thirteen miles of pipe, having cost $160,000. It has, also, several miles of street railroad in full operation.

This is the shipping point for the products of numerous furnaces in the surrounding country.

The wholesale trade of the city sums up its millions, with a retail trade in proportion; and in the Directory will be found the names and firms that transact this extensive mercantile, manufacturing and mechanical business.

In short, with superior commercial and manufacturing advantages, with a picturesque and healthy location; and with a spirit of enterprise among the citizens, not rash, but ardent and hopeful, the future of Portsmouth is every way promising; and there is nothing apparent to forbid an indefinite advancement in population, wealth and prosperity.

HISTORICAL.

Chillicothe, next to Marietta, is the oldest town in the State, and is the business centre of a large section of country. It is situated on the south bank of the Scioto river, forty-five miles from Columbus, and about the same distance from Portsmouth, and has a population of about twelve thousand. The Marietta and Cincinnati Railroad and the Scioto Valley Railway run through the east side of the city, the former affording her an outlet East and West, and the latter North and South. Another railroad will soon be in operation, running from Dayton to the coal fields. The repair shops of the Marietta and Cincinnati Railroad are located at this place.

On August 20, 1798, Ross county was formed by a proclamation of Governor St. Clair, and was the sixth county formed in the Northwest Territory, and was named after the Hon. James Ross, of Allegheny county, Pennsylvania. In May, 1799, the first Postoffice was opened, and Joseph Tiffin was appointed the Postmaster. Thomas Gregg opened a tavern stand under the sign of "The Green Tree," on the corner of Paint and Water streets; and Joseph Tiffin one at the corner of Water and Walnut streets, under the name of "General Anthony Wayne."

Chillicothe was incorporated as a town in 1802, and as a city in April, 1838. In 1800 the seat of government of the Northwest Territory was removed to Chillicothe by an act of Congress, and the sessions of the Territorial Legislature were first held on the corner of Second and Walnut streets, on the ground now occupied by the Thatcher Block, in a house built by Basil Adams, of hewed logs, two stories high, and covered with shingles; the same place was also used for holding religious services by the Methodists and Presbyterians. During the war of 1812 it was used as a recruiting place, and as a barracks for troops, and was torn down in 1840.

In 1800, the building of the old "State House" was commenced, with Thomas Worthington as President of the Board of Commissioners, and the work was paid for by giving orders on the merchants for merchandise. The building was completed in the summer of 1801, and was of stone, two stories high, with cupola and bell. It was situated on the Public Square, where the Court House now stands, and was the first stone house built in the Northwest Territory. The stone work and plastering was done by Maj. William Rutledge, a soldier of the Revolutionary War, and the carpenter work by William Guthrie. The building was torn down in 1853. On November 1, 1802, the Convention to form the first Constitution of the State of Ohio met in the Old State House; and on the 29th of November it was ratified, they only remaining in session twenty-eight days. On March 3, 1803, the first State Legislature met at the same place, and elected Edward Tiffin as the first Governor of Ohio.

The township in which Chillicothe is situated takes its name from the Scioto river, and is the oldest township in the county, and has probably been the residence of more men eminent as merchants, professional men, politicians and statesmen, than any other township in the State, among whom are four Governors of Ohio:—Edward Tiffin, Thomas Worthington, Duncan McArthur and William Allen, together with Nathaniel Massie, who was elected but declined serving.

CHILLICOTHE.

MANUFACTURING AND COMMERCIAL, BUSINESS NOTICES.

UNION COAL YARDS.

The general office of these yards is at the corner of Water and Bridge streets. This firm began business about eight years ago, which has constantly increased until the present time. They undoubtedly have established the most extensive coal yards in this section. They are now erecting a coal elevator which will surpass anything of the kind in Southern Ohio, outside of Cincinnati. With these facilities for handling coal they will doubtless be enabled to give their customers the benefit of prompt delivery and low rates. In addition to their extensive coal trade, they handle the principal amount of lime, cement and plaster shipped to this region of country, which they sell at wholesale and retail. The lime furnished by them is of the best quality procurable from the various producers of the article. Parties from a distance will find it to their advantage to correspond with, or call on, them. Their advertisement is on the inside front cover of this work.

GOULD & KELLO.

This firm are successors to Gould & Silvus, and though comparatively a new firm, they have established a business which is second to none in this line in the country. They wholesale and retail wall paper, window paper, books, stationery and school supplies. They also do job printing in all its branches, and make a specialty of pictures and picture frames; felt weather strips for doors and windows, pens and writing fluid.

Their stock will be found full and complete, and those wishing to make purchases either large or small, cannot do better than call and examine for themselves.

W. H. REED & CO.

The planing mill and lumber yard of this firm is on east Water street. They are well-known throughout the city and county, owing to the length of time they have been in the business. They deal largely in all kinds lumber, lath and shingles, and manufacture the best quality of doors, sash, blinds, flooring, etc. The firm is composed of W. H. Reed, P. G. Reed and John Reed. Their advertisement appears on another page.

ROSE GROVE NURSERY.

This widely known nursery occupies thirteen acres at the corner of Douglass street and Station road. Mr. Wm. McKellar, the proprietor, began the business here fifteen years ago, which has steadily grown in importance until he now transacts the largest business of the kind in the valley. He not only has a large local trade, but he wholesales quite extensively, for which he has ample facilities, as the Scioto Valley Railroad passes the premises, from which a switch is extended to the grounds. He keeps constantly for sale a fine assortment of fruit trees, grape vines, evergreens, shrubs, etc. He makes a specialty of tube roses and grape vines, of which he has an excellent variety. For further particulars we refer to his advertisement.

M. J. KILLITS

Commenced the insurance business here in March, 1873, from which time his business has rapidly increased, which is no doubt owing to the fact that he has always given strict attention to everything in this line entrusted to him, and also that all losses have been promptly and satisfactorily adjusted. By referring to his advertisement it will be seen that his agency is the largest in the city, the total assets of which are $46,700,000. Our patrons in the country should notice that he represents the old Ohio Farmer's Insurance Co., which insures farm property only. Office, corner Paint and Main.

PURDUM & REED.

This enterprising firm is among the leading business men of the city, and bid fair to take the first rank in their line of trade, which consists of hardware, agricultural implements, etc. They give strict attention to business, employ none but reliable and thoroughly competent clerks, and endeavor by fair dealing to give entire satisfaction to all. They carry none but first-class goods, and besides their large and varied stock of hardware they have a full line of implements, such as plows, planters, cultivators, reapers, drills, threshing machines, farm wagons, and all the small implements, such as hoes, rakes, forks, etc. Are agents for the celebrated Howe Scales for farm, warehouse, grocery and family use. This firm was the first to introduce into this market the sale of garden seed in bulk, and it now constitutes one of the branches of their trade, and garden farmers have found it to be a great improvement in the vegetable line. Farmers will find them supplied with clover and timothy seed in their season and at reasonable rates. We would advise all to test their claims by giving them a call.

JOHN M. GOEHNER

Is a manufacturer and dealer in Italian and American marble monuments and tombstones. He has been in business here for twelve years. Commencing on a small scale, his business gradually but surely increased, until at the present time he carries as large a stock of marble and granite as any firm in this section. His success is no doubt owing to the fact that he thoroughly understands the business, having worked at the trade from his youth. Those in need of anything in his line should call and see his stock and get prices.

THE WARNER HOUSE

Is popularly known among the traveling public as being decidedly "all right." The proprietor, Mr. Jake Warner, is unremitting in his attention to the comfort of his guests, and is noted for those affable and entertaining qualities which are always admired in a landlord. Patrons of this house may depend upon being made comfortable and "all right."

DUMP & SONS

Are on the alley south of Water street and east of Paint. They are engaged in the manufacture of carriages, buggies, express wagons, sulkies, etc. They warrant all their work, and claim to sell cheaper than any other house in the valley.

ROBERT H. LANSING.

The store of this gentleman is located on the corner of Paint and Second streets, where may be found a large and complete stock of drugs, paints, oils, perfumery, brushes, patent medicines, etc.; in fact everything usually found in a first-class drug store. The filling of prescriptions is made a specialty here, and those desiring pure drugs, compounded by an expert in the business, should not fail to call here. Mr. Lansing has been in business here many years, and by fair and honorable dealing has established a large and lucrative trade in the city and surrounding country.

GEO. J. HERRNSTEIN & BROS.

Are extensive manufacturers of and dealers in all kinds of lumber, lath, shingles, sash, doors, blinds, flooring, siding, etc. Their mill is on the corner of Deer Creek and Mill streets. Their facilities for conducting the business are not surpassed by any firm in the valley, as their numerous customers in the city and surrounding country can testify. Their card appears in another part of this work.

C. F. DUFEU,

The popular jeweler, occupies the convenient and pleasant rooms at 28 Paint street, opposite the Odd Fellows' Hall. It is worthy of note that this is the oldest jewelry store in the State, having been established in 1823. The present proprietor is successor to E. P. Pratt, who conducted the business for forty-seven years. Mr. Dufeu not only employs skilled workmen, but is himself a practical watchmaker and jeweler, having learned the business in London and France before coming to this country. His stock will be found complete, consisting of fine gold and silver watches, jewelry of all kinds, clocks, etc. From the time this house was first started, the business has constantly increased, showing plainly that fair and honorable dealing, together with reliable goods at moderate prices, are appreciated by the community.

EMMITT HOUSE.

This house is centrally located on Paint street, nearly opposite the Court House, and convenient to all the business houses of the city. Mr. F. R. Emmitt, the proprietor, thoroughly understands the business, and the accommodations for commercial travelers are not surpassed by any house in the valley.

LEWIS, KLEIN & CO.

This is one of the most extensive hardware firms in the county. They keep a full stock of general hardware, agricultural implements, and everything in this line. They also keep a complete stock of grass seeds, which are always warranted pure. This firm have been in business here long enough to become well and favorably known throughout the city and county, as the amount of their sales would clearly indicate. A tour through their extensive establishment will amply repay any who have purchases to make in this line.

FOX, GOODRICK & CO.

Are located on east Second street. They manufacture all kinds of fine carriages, side bar buggies, phaetons and barouches, of which they always have a good stock on hand in their elegant wareroom. The proprietors are practical men and give their personal attention to all work intrusted to them. Those wishing anything in this line would do well to call and see their styles and get prices. Their advertisement appears in another portion of this work.

DR. C. W. ROBINSON

Occupies the elegant dental parlors in the Madeira block, corner of Second and Paint streets. He does all kinds of work known to the profession in a first-class manner. His knowledge of the profession was acquired by many years of practice and observation, not only in this city, but also while associated with some of the leading dentists of Cincinnati. His card appears elsewhere.

WAYLAND & VANMETER.

Prominent among the merchants of Chillicothe we mention the well-known firm of Wayland & VanMeter. They occupy a large and spacious room on Paint street, in the Warner House block, and carry as large and complete a stock of dry goods and carpets as any house in the county. This firm buy their goods in large quantities, direct from the manufacturers for cash, and are thus enabled to sell at prices that are within the reach of all. We invite attention to their card in this work.

ALLSTON & DAVIS.

This firm occupies a large and commodious store room on the corner of Paint and Main streets, where may be found a large and complete stock of drugs, paints, oils, glass, putty, varnishes, brushes, garden seeds, etc. In fact everything usually kept in a first-class drug store. Careful attention is paid to the filling of prescriptions, and all drugs purchased here are warranted pure. Attention is called to their card, which will be found on the back cover of this volume.

He has an attractive stock of gents' furnishing goods, white shirts, collars, etc. His merchant tailoring department is well stocked with desirable goods for suitings of all kinds, and he enjoys an enviable reputation for the good fit of all garments that leave his shop.

GEORGE BOHN.

The shop and store room occupied by this gentleman is located at No. 4 east Second street, where he manufactures and deals in boots and shoes of all kinds. W. W. GRAHAM,
PRACTICAL
 Gas, Steam and Water Pipe Fitter,

Walnut St., bet. 2d & Water, - CHILlicothe, O.

I am prepared to fit up buildings with Pipe at short notice, and in a workmanlike manner.

I would call special attention to my Improved Method of manufacturing Illuminating Gas, by which individuals can make their own Gas at one fourth the cost of City Gas. The light produced is far superior to the City Gas, and there is no danger whatever in its use or manufacture. Having had the apparatus in use for One Year, by one of our wealthiest citizens, I can truthfully say, it is the cheapest and best machine for lighting private and public buildings that has yet been introduced. Best of references given and satisfaction guaranteed.

Waverly Historical Sketch.

The town of Waverly, the county seat of Pike county, is beautifully situated in one of the most fertile and healthy valleys of the State, on the west side of the Scioto river, one mile from said stream and twenty-nine miles from its mouth, where it empties into the Ohio river at Portsmouth.

The original proprietors of Waverly were Mershes Downing, Allen Barnes and Richard Chenowith.

The first sale of lots took place in 1829, and the name given to the embryo town was Uniontown, which it retained some two or three years, when it received its present name. Sales of lots have been made at different times since, and sundry additions have been made from time to time by individuals, called Emmitt's addition, Howard's addition, etc., until it has obtained its present dimensions.

The industries carried on are for the most part of a local character, but there is a large distillery, two tanneries, and a saw and two planing mills, furniture factories, two grist mills and two brick yards, the products of which are not confined to the town or county, but find market in the neighboring towns and villages which are made accessible by the superior railroad facilities of the town. Another branch of business which bids fair to become one of no little importance to the town is that of free stone. Here may be found some of the most magnificent quarries in the State. On this subject we make the following extract from the Pike County Republican :

" We visited a quarry last week, and there can be seen strata upon strata of this deposit from fourteen to eighteen, twenty and twenty-four inches in thickness, divided only by a seam less than that which the mason leaves as he places layer upon layer of stone, giving the appearance of a massive foundation, laid by the grand architect of the universe.

“These strata are of a width, and extend back without developing a perpendicular seam, producing a solid stone of dimensions beyond the possibility of any known method of engineering to remove. We saw where slabs of twenty feet square could be marked out, and which are almost beyond practicable size, and there is no knowing how extended these layers may be, but it seems as if each stratum were one complete plate, possibly hundreds of feet in width; the thickness has been spoken of, and consequently it can be seen that it only requires the skill of the quarryman to break off a piece of any required dimensions.”

Geographically, Waverly is laid out in squares something over three hundred feet each way, intersected by an alley twelve feet in width and each original village lot is one hundred and fifty by sixty-three feet. The entire number of squares is twenty-five, running five blocks from north to south and the same number from east to west. The county is almost exclusively agricultural, the town depending for its prosperity upon a trade from farmers, some of whom are of great wealth, particularly those who have large tracts of the rich bottom land through which the Scioto river flows. This land is probably as productive as any in the State, and is largely cultivated in corn; but a larger area is now planted in wheat, barley, clover and other crops than prevailed a few years since.

HON. JAMES EMMITT.

No historical sketch of the town can be complete without mention of Mr. Emmitt. This gentleman has been a resident of the county for over sixty years, and for fifty years has been actively engaged in mercantile business in the town. Almost all the substantial public improvements that have from time to time been completed owe their completion in a great measure to his energy and enterprise. Few men in our time have succeeded in so thoroughly identifying themselves with all the trade of the town in which they live as Mr. Emmitt, and this without any attempt to monopolize the trade, or use the power incident to wealth and influence to oppress the poor or restrain the healthy competition of any or all branches of business. - As an illustration of the esteem in which he is held by the community, it may be mentioned that he was twice elected to the State Senate. A volume might be written giving a history of his checkered career, and the many vicissitudes through which he has passed. The following extract, taken from the Pike County Republican, gives an account of his early history, as narrated by himself, and will be found interesting :

"My early life was spent in a very humble way and under the endurance of much hardship and many privations. My ancestors on my father's side came to America from Ireland about 1780, when my Grandfather Emmitt settled at a place called Kishacoquillos Valley, in Pennsylvania, and removed from thence soon after the termination of the Revolutionary War to Armstrong county, in the same State, near the Allegheny river, on a small stream called Licking creek, where my father, George Emmitt, married Mary Adlie Stanford, in the year 1801. She belonged to a family of Pennsylvania Germans. I was the first child, born November 6, 1806. The county was poor in soil, and the inhabitants lived mostly by hunting wild game. My father entered into mercantile pursuits, but found so little encouragement that he became dissatisfied with the country and made up his mind to realize on what he had and return to the old country. He sold out, but took his pay in Continental money which became worthless and as a consequence he was unable to go back.

When I was in my tenth year my father made up his mind to remove to what was then called the far west, and in the spring of 1816, which was shortly after the war of 1812, set out on the tedious journey.

On the first day we reached the Allegheny river about ten miles from the starting point and we spent the night in a deserted hut near the bank, which was so filled with snakes that some had to keep watch and fight them while the others slept. On the following morning we placed everything on a raft of boards, embarked and floated down to Steubenville, O., where we remained all summer. This delay was occasioned by the fact that funds were so scarce that the men had to go to work to earn means to continue the journey. My grandmother, on my mother's side, died during the stay at Steubenville, and her husband went forward to seek a location, which resulted in the selection, after which he returned, and we all got into a flatboat or batteau, and after a time reached Portsmouth.

It had been the intention to take a keel boat at Portsmouth and work up the Scioto river to Pike county, but the river was so low that it was necessary to make the journey with teams, which we did, and in due course of time arrived at Piketon.

The first day of this journey we only went four miles, stopping near the house of Col. Noals. Our party dared not go into the house, as they learned that the family were down with the ague, a disease that none of the party were acquainted with, and they feared it was contaigous, so we slept in the wagons.

Piketon had been laid out as a town the previous year, and there were only one or two houses in the place. The following day we proceeded to our destination, which was two miles north of Waverly, on a piece of land consisting of 80 acres, having on it two log cabins, which were soon found to be entirely too small for the accommodation of five families. Consequently, we had to suffer, although all were so rejoiced to finish their journey that almost anything seemed preferable to the sufferings which had to be endured by the pioneer while emigrating into the wilderness. I have since then made a journey of 20,000 miles, accompanied by my family, crossing the Atlantic and traveling over the most of Europe, with less fatigue than was endured in this journey of 300 miles.
